SEEGER WORRIED

Marin Facing Water Shortage

Marin's top water official said yesterday the county faces a water shortage because of an unusual winter dry spell that has left the county without rain in 14 days and seen total seasonal rainfall plummet far below normal totals.

In a report to the Marin Municipal Water District board, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger warned that district reservoirs threaten to drop to critical stages.

"I'm plenty worried," Seeger declared.

Water district directors heeded warnings from Seeger and other aides by instructing the staff to prepare new policies for limiting new water line connections, and even for the possibility of water rationing. J. Dietrich Stroh, principal engineer, said the reports should be ready for board action within 30 days.

The directors also asked the staff to report on proposals to increase the district's water supply, including reclamation of waste water.

Robert W. Elliott, the district's attorney, said present policies obligate the district to provide water connections to anyone within the district unless the new hookups would dangerously reduce water pressure or are too far from existing mains.

Elliott said the district could revise its regulations to limit or forbid hookups in case of insufficient water availibility.

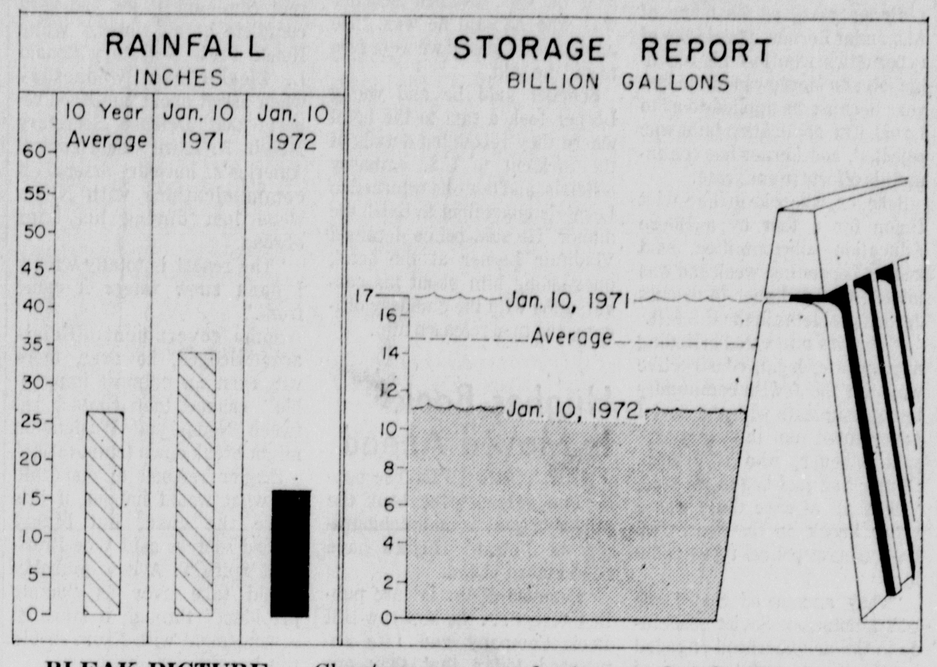
As of Monday, according to water officials, the district's five reservoirs held only 11 billion gallons, instead of the nearly 15 billion they normally hold by this time of the year. By Jan. 10, 1971, the lakes were spilling over, filled to their 17-billion gallon capacity by a total of 35 inches of rain to that date.

This year's total since the rain started late in September has been only 16 inches in the water district guages. Normal for the past 10 years has been about 27 inches by Jan. 10.

Seeger explained yesterday the district "theoretically" could use all its stored water, but he said the safe minimum reserve shguld be 4 billion gallons.

That meant on Monday the usable supply was seven billion gallons. Predicted use for 1972 is 11 billion gallons, directors were told yesterday.

The district may have to curtail water use unless the district reservoirs hold 15 billion gallons by May, the board was warned by B. G. Grant, special projects engineer. Of the water now in storage, only 2.3 billion gallons has been collected during the current rainy season; the remainder is left over from earlier years.



BLEAK PICTURE — Chart prepared by Marin Municipal Water District engineers shows that district reservoirs are below normal storage levels due to low rainfall. No rain has fallen in the county in two weeks.

Last season's rains had added 7.7 billion gallons to the district supply by Jan. 10, 1971.

Last October, Seeger warned the water district directors that a dry year such as Marin now faces, combined with failure of an election to authorize the proposed Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct, could mean curtailment of water use this summer.

The aqueduct was defeated by a 9-1 margin at the Marin County polls Nov. 2 It would eventually have delivered up to 14 billion gallons of water annually from the Russian River to Marin.

Due to wide variation in rainfall at different Marin County locations, the water district figures don't compare closely with

AWOL Private's Fingerprints Found

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal court issued a warrant today for the arrest of a well-educated AWOL Army private who the FBI says is connected with the planting of bombs in bank safety deposit boxes in three cities.

RONALD KAUFMAN
Warrant out

The warrant obtained by the U.S. Attorney's office at the request of the FBI specifically charges Ronald Kaufman, 33, with maliciously attempting to damage and destroy three San Francisco banks.

In Washington, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Kaufman also is wanted in connection with the planting of bombs at banks in Chicago and New York.

Kaufman was identified, the FBI director said, by fingerprints found on bomb components taken from San Francisco banks.

Because of mysterious letters to the news media, police agencies found bombs Jan. 7 at the banks in three cities. In San Francisco, one bomb had exploded without extensive damage and two others were disarmed before they went off.

Kaufman reportedly holds a Ph.D. degree and has been connected with Students for a Democratic Society.

The FBI director said Kaufman, who reenlisted in the Army Aug. 10, 1971, under the name "James Edward Jensen," failed to report at Fort Jackson, S.C., for overseas shipment last Saturday after completing a 30-day leave.

The bombs were constructed of battery-powered calendar clocks, photographic flash bulbs, and black powder. FBI laboratory experts who examined the bombs said they were capable of exploding.

The FBI said Kaufman was born at Milwaukee, Wis., and lived in Berkeley, Calif., until last July.

Kaufman was reported to have attended SDS conventions in Clear Lake, Iowa, in 1966 and Ann Arbor, Mich., in 1967 and was a student at the University of Wisconsin periodically from September, 1955, to June, 1961, the FBI said. It said he attended Stanford University at Palo Alto, Calif., from September, 1961, to December, 1965, receiving masters and Ph.d degrees. The FBI said Kaufman attended the University of Chicago in 1967.

In addition to being charged with maliciously attempting to damage and destroy the three San Francisco banks, the FBI said, Kaufman was wanted on "other related charges." Hoover said conviction of the offenses could result in 81 years imprisonment and $90,000 in fines.

The FBI said Kaufman should be considered "armed and dangerous."

The bombs were found and disarmed in safety deposit boxes in three Chicago banks, two banks in San Francisco an three banks in New York City.

Seven of the boxes where bombs were found had been leased by a young man who identified himself as "Christopher Charles Mohr."

The letters said the bombs had been planted months ago. They indicated "future bombings" would occur with more sophisticated devices.

Groppi Contempt Ruling Reversed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court overturned today a contempt sentence meted out to Father James E. Groppi by the Wisconsin legislature. The Court held that the militant Milwaukee priest was not given a statement of the charges or a chance to respond to them.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger delivered the unanimous 7-0 opinion.

The newly seated members of the Court —Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr., and William H. Rehnquist —did not participate in the ruling.

Under an 1848 state law, the Wisconsin assembly cited the civil rights leader by a 71-24 vote on Oct. 1, 1969, two days after he had led 1,000 people onto the chamber floor in a protest against cuts in welfare payments. The resolution specified he would be confined in the county jail for six months or for the duration of the legislative session whichever was briefer.

When Father Groppi appealed to federal courts, U.S. District Judge James E. Doyle ruled in his favor but when the state took the case to the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the conviction was upheld.

In reversing the appeals court, Burger said when a legislative body acts two days after the vent, "in the absence of the contemnor and without notice, there is no assurance that the members of the legislature are acting, as a judge does in a contempt case, on the basis of personal observation and identification of the contemnor engaging in the conduct.

"Nor is there any opportunity

Challenger To Arrigoni Announces

Dr. William J. Filante, a Greenbrae eye specialist, has announced his candidacy for the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Filante, 42, who will be campaigning for the second supervisorial district seat held by board chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., said he is seeking to improve Marin's environment and living conditions through tax reform.

A former instructor at the Henry George School of Economics in San Francisco, Filante said change of the basic property tax structure is the key.

Such reform, he said, could

BUDGET KINGPINS

Spending In Hands Of Collier, Brown

By GEORGE SKELTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The fate of Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed $7.6 billion state budget now rests with two consummate politicians—one a silver-maned "senator's senator" from rural Yreka, the other a hip black from San Francisco.

Sen. Randolph Collier's grandfather owned slaves; Assemblyman Willie Brown's great, great grandmother was one.

They come from different worlds, but have one thing in common. They are two of the three, or possibly four, most powerful men in the 120-member California Legislature.

Collier is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Brown heads the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. Through these committees must pass all money bills, including the governor's budget.

Both chairmen said in interviews that Reagan's budget will contain more money for public elementary and high schools by the time it ascends from their committees.

"Teachers obviously have done a better job lobbying for their salaries than for pupil dollars," Brown said.

"Teacher salaries in California are second in the nation. But money spent per pupil is 31st. We're going to alter that and try to move pupil expenditures up closer to where they should be. I don't think we'll mess around with teacher salaries."

Brown said committee work

Pinch Will Be Felt By Prison Move

San Quentin Prison's closing could have a $4 million annual impact on the economy of Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, according to figures supplied yesterday by prison officials.

Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau members haven't discussed the economic implications, first raised a week ago today by Warden Louis A. Nelson of the prison. But chamber manager Carroll A. Snyker said yesterday the subject might come up at the directors' meeting today.

Joseph R. O'Brien, San Quentin information officer, and Jack Ritter, prison business services director, said yesterday the prison spends between $140,000 and $150,000 a year on direct purchases in Marin County. Utilities, communication, garbage and other monthly bills account for another $357,527 a year locally, Ritter said.

The prison's operating budget for fiscal 1971-72 is $8.5 million.

O'Brien said about 60 per cent of the prison's 625 fulltime employees live in Marin and Southern Sonoma, and roughly estimated their total paychecks amounted to $3.6 million each year.

Wallace In The Race —As A Democrat

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama declared his candidacy for President on the Democratic ticket today, starting with the Florida primary March 14.

The announcement meant that all three presidential candidates in 1968 are trying again in 1972 —Richard Nixon, who eventually was successful as a Republican; Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democrat; and Wallace, who ran four years ago on a third party.

Wallace made his announcement in Tallahassee, Fla., surrounded by an entourage of 95 Alabamans, including Sen. James B. Allen.

He made no mention of a third party, and presented his candidacy as "a new beginning of hope for the American people." He promised continued withdrawal from Vietnam, a return of law and order, reduced taxes; a halt to forced busing of students to achieve racial desegregation, and no recognition of Cuba.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., proposed major reforms for income, corporate and inheritance taxes, and a minimum annual stipend for every American, to be paid by a redistribution of income.

Outlining his sweeping overhaul of the tax and welfare systems, the South Dakota senator said the most urgently needed change "is to place far greater emphasis on fairness."

"Each American should feel that he is getting his money's worth, and that he is being treated exactly like every other American," McGovern said. "Each American should pay his fair share and each American should receive his fair share."

In a campaign speech prepared for delivery at Iowa State University in Ames, McGovern predicted his tax reforms would generate an additional $18 billion in revenues in fiscal 1972 and $28 billion in fiscal 1973.

He proposed a minimum income tax for those with incomes, from any source, in excess of $50,000, thereby shutting off the loopholes by which some millionaires pay no taxes; elimination of "special loopholes" for corporations, including accelerated depreciation rates and the investment tax credit; and placing a 100 per cent tax on gifts and inheritances over $500,000, with a pro-

70,000 GIs Will Pull Out; Another Troop Cut Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon personally announced today he is withdrawing an additional 70,000 combat troops from Vietnam by May 1, a cut of more than one half which will leave a U.S. force of 69,000 there.

He also told newsmen at the White House he will announce a further troop withdrawal before the May 1 target date.

In response to questions, however, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird who attended the news briefing, said the United States will not remove all forces from South Vietnam "until the POW situation is resolved."

Nixon said in his brief announcement, the additional units to be withdrawn over three months will mean a ceiling of troops in Vietnam of 69,000 by May 1.

Laird, who fielded all questions, said the Administration planned to "meet or beat" that ceiling by the target date.

Laird said that the United States "will continue to use American air power to protect the armed forces who remain in South Vietnam."

He also sharply criticized Democratic presidential contenders who have been calling for total U.S. troops withdrawal from Southeast Asia.

Without mentioning anyone by name, Laird said it was strange that some of the people touring the country criticizing Nixon's Vietnamization program "were silent in 1968 or before" when he noted the United States was "on an escalator, going up and up and up."

"Now," Laird said, under the administration policy the trend was "down, down and down."

Laird declined to indicate

Trickle Of Nomination Papers Are Taken Out

A trickle of would-be candidates took out nomination papers today for the April 11 elections in 10 Marin and two Southern Sonoma cities.

By noon today, however, no papers had been returned completed.

Candidates have until noon Feb. 3 to file for a total of 26 council seats in Marin, six in Cotati and Rohnert Park and clerk and treasurer posts in several of the cities. Only San Rafael and Petaluma — both charter cities — will not have municipal elections April 11.

Only four sets of papers were issued today to persons who either were not incumbents or had not already announced their candidacy. In Novato, papers were taken out by Edward T. Ryken, director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, and Daniel P. Donovan, pharmacy owner and chairman of one of the neighborhood committees working on revision of the Novato General Plan.

In Larkspur, council nomination papers were issued to Robert H. Lee, chairman of the city planning commission.

Neither Ryken nor Donovan could be reached to learn whether they had obtained the papers in their own behalf or for some other candidate. Lee's wife said that her husband would be a candidate for the Larkspur council.

In Sausalito, Edwin S. Long, former city treasurer, took out candidacy papers and announced he will again seek the treasurer's post in April.

The 64-year-old Long served as treasurer from 1952 until 1967, when he resigned because of the pressure of other business.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Coup In Ghana

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — The army overthrew Premier Kofi Busia of Ghana today while he was in London. Ghana Radio announced the coup d'etat and accused Busia of "arbitrary arrests, malpractices and economic mismanagement."

The broadcast heard in Lagos, Nigeria, said Ghana would be governed by an executive committee of military officers and civilian advisers.

Mrs. Richard Nixon visited Ghana last week during a three-stop African tour and was a guest of Busia's.

The spokesmen for those who took over the government accused Busia of acquiring wealth outside Ghana and they promised reforms including a rural development program.

Ghana Radio played martial music with breaks for brief announcements about the coup.

The Ghanian High Commission in London said Busia had arrived there Monday for treatment of an eye disorder but said he was unavailable for comment.

Rahman Takes Over

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Bengali leader Sheikh Mujibur Rahman will hold the portfolios of defense, home affairs, cabinet affairs and information and broadcasting in the new Bangladesh cabinet, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported from Dacca today.

Rahman was sworn in as prime minister Wednesday after issuing a provisional constitutional order for a parliamentary form of government. PTI said that the former prime minister, Tajuddin Ahmed, has been given the ministries of finance, planning and revenue.

The news agency said that the former vice president of the revolutionary government, Syed Nazrul Islam, has been given the ministries of industry, trade and commerce. Abdus Samad Azad would continue to be foreign minister in the 12-man cabinet, he said.

Going To China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eighty American newsmen will be allowed to accompany President Nixon to mainland China next month, and they will be able to transmit instant live television, teletype copy and photographs.

The White House gave details of press arrangements for the trip yesterday, and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the Chinese made it clear there would be "absolutely no press censorship."

Ziegler also announced a Chinese table tennis team will come to the United States sometime in the spring for matches with an American team similar to those held in Peking in April. Those matches were the prelude to a breakthrough in relations between the two countries.

Belfast Battle

BELFAST (UPI) — Rival factions of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) said today they joined forces against British troops in Londonderry Wednesday in one of the most intense gunbattles in Northern Ireland in more than two years.

The usually conservative official wing of the IRA and the more militant provisional wing fought side by side against British troops for two hours in Londonderry's Roman Catholic Bogside area.

The British said they wounded four IRA men in the fight. The IRA said it wounded two soldiers but the army denied it.

Dope Figures Free

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Five members of a reputed nationwide narcotics gang based in Florida were freed by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday because Attorney General John Mitchell did not personally authorize wiretaps used to convict them.

The five released included Mario Escandar, described by the Miami Herald as "a flamboyant south Florida leader of a nationwide cocaine and heroin ring."

Escandar was freed along with J. W. Robinson, Carlos Escandar and Margarita Arce de Armas. They were convicted after being arrested in June with 40 other south Floridijns during a top-secret Justice Department crackdown on dope traffic.

Reds Claim Win

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Communist forces claimed today they have taken over the American-run base at Long Cheng, killing aN/large number of gov ernment forces. Government sources denied the report but said they were preparing to evacuate the base.

A broadcast by the Communist Pathet Lao said "the Lao Peoples Liberation Army Wednesday overran Long Cheng, the last stronghold of special forces and Thai mercenaries in the Plain of Jars area."

It said "the enemy forces were annihilated in large numbers and the rest fled in panic with the Liberation Army after them."

Guerrillas Killed

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — A government force of 4,000 army, air force and national police with helicopter support engaged antigovernment guerrillas holed up in a cave near an airport highway Wednesday. Nine soldiers and four guerrillas including the insurgents leader, were killed in the gunfire exchange.

Among those killed was Amaury German Aristy, 25, leader of the leftwing guerrillas, police said.

The guerrillas were accused by Dominican government authorities of plotting a campaign of terrorism to begin late this month. They had been sought since Nov. 8 in a $62,000 armed holdup of a Royal Bank of Canada branch.

Suit Attacks Medical Setup

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Reagan administration has been accused in a suit filed in Sacramento Superior Court of "frustrating the intent of the Legislature" in its enforcement of new welfare and Medi-Cal laws.

The suit was filed Wednesday by five Medi-Cal recipients who claim they face forfeiture of medical care if they apply for disability benefits.

All five of the plaintiffs suffer from physical or mental disabilities or both and need immediate medical attention as well as a cash welfare grant, the suit contends.

Russ Arrest Member Of Congress

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet police arrested U.S. Rep. James H. Scheuer Wednesday as he sat down to dinner at the home of a Jewish scientist who has tried to go to Israel, Scheuer said today.

"They took me to the local pokey where I sat incommunicado for 40 minutes in a small room with a light bulb," the New York City Democrat said. "It was a scene out of Kafka, or perhaps a Franz Lehar musical comedy."

Scheuer said the apparent motive in the arrest was to break up a dinner party at the home of Alexander Lerner, a professor of cybernetics who lost his teaching job at a Moscow institute last year because he applied to go to Israel. The application later was rejected, and Lerner has continued his efforts to emigrate.

Scheuer, who was in the Soviet Union for a tour by a House Education subcommittee, said he met Lerner last week and was invited to the dinner to discuss Jewish problems in the U.S.S.R.

"We were interested in finding appropriate, legal, constructive ways for the Jewish community to communicate with the Soviet government on this matter," said Scheuer, who is Jewish. Dinner had just begun, he said, "when all at once there was a sharp knock on the door. Two KGB (secret police) types came in.

"They announced that there was a notorious Soviet desperado in the neighborhood engaged in the most awful series of crimes and disguised as a foreigner. They said they were under instructions to pick up any foreigner who had the look of an evil desperado."

Scheuer said the senior officer "fixed an eagle eye on me as he talked."

The congressman produced several identity cards, including his congressional card bearing the seal of the House of Representatives.

"Anybody can forge these cards," the officer told him.

"The officer agreed he would take me to the Intourist hotel where my wife had my passport," Scheuer said, and he left the apartment accompanied by the two officers and Lerner's son, Vladimir, who acted as interpreter.

Instead of going to the hotel, Scheuer said, the officers took them to the police station and put them in a small room for the 40-minute wait. Then the officer said he was satisfied Scheuer was who he said he was. "He apologized and said we were free to go," he said.

Scheuer said he and young Lerner took a taxi to the hotel where they recounted details of the incident to U.S. embassy officials, and later he returned to Lerner's apartment to finish the dinner. He said police detained Vladimir Lerner at the hotel, questioning him about his conversation with the embassy officers, and then released him.

Hughes Book Is Moved Ahead

NEW YORK (UPI)—The publication dates of the book the publishers say is an autobiography of Howard Hughes have been moved ahead.

"Because of the intense public interest . . . the McGraw-Hill Book Company and Life announced today that they are advancing the publishing dates," the two publishers said in a joint statement Wednesday.

The book will be published March 6, instead of the original publication date of March 27. Three 10,000 world installments in Life will appear beginning in the issue of Feb. 11. They had been scheduled to begin March 10.

Elaborate Hotline For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon will carry with him to Peking and to Moscow the authority—and the necessary codes—for ordering a nuclear retaliation against an attack on the United States.

Partly for this reason, the White House and the Department of Defense have gone to extreme lengths to make sure Nixon never gets out of contact with Washington during his two historic trips. The measures taken, officials say, are all but foolproof.

"The President will have direct communications and very complete at all times," White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Wednesday when asked about published reports that Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird would control America's nuclear arsenal if communications with Nixon were lost during his trips abroad.

"The report is totally wrong. I don't know where it came from."

Some government officials acknowledged, however, there will exist an "almost impossible" chance that contact between Nixon and Washington might break down temporarily.

Ziegler refused to elaborate on what would happen if this were the case, but highly placed sources said Vice President Spiro T. Avnew probably would take over as "acting president" through a standing arrangement with Nixon should this happen.

As acting president, Agnew would assume temporarily the role of U.S. commander in chief and would gain access—which he lacks as vice president—to the codes needed to initiate a nuclear response to an attack on the United States.

This type of agreement, the details of which are kept secret, has been a standard fixture of each administration.

Baton Rouge Pinpoints Cause Of Racial Unrest

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Negro and white leaders agreed today that the city's racial violence was instigated by 14 members of a Black Muslin cult who came to town—not to start a riot—but to recruit support for their splinter sect.

City leaders at first said the 14 religious zealots—who came to Baton Rouge a week before Monday's shootout with police, dressed in black suits and butterfly bow ties—wanted to take over the city.

But today, both black and white leaders concurred that the violence which killed four persons was not part of the plan, but was incidental.

The men who instigated the violence, Mayor Woodrow W. Dumas said Wednesday, were a splinter group within the Black Muslims. Their plan was to take over the Muslins from within, and assassinate its leader, Elijah Muhammad of Chicago.

"If I were him, I would get myself bodyguards real fast, because these guys plan on getting rid of him just like they got rid of Malcolm X," Dumas said.

GOOD PICTURES IN BAD WEATHER

Take the same pictures in bad weather? Why not? Chances are you might get better pictures. Bad weather can sometimes be a photographer's bonus.

Fog, rain, snow, etc., tend to fade out the background, to soften and subordinate it, giving an added feeling of depth and perspective. They also create mood, from somber to humorous, sad or mysterious. And they add freshness simply because fewer people are out taking pictures in bad weather. You get a new slant on things, new lighting effects, unpredictable situations.

Today's cameras and films make the technical side of bad weather photography a challenge you can take in stride. As for equipment, keep it dry in your pocket until you're ready to use it. The brief exposure while you're taking pictures won't harm it. Just dry everything off when you're done.

Stock up on film now for that new Christmas camera . . . and give it a test in the winter weather ahead. We have all your photographic needs, at

Soviet Student Homeward Bound

NEW YORK (UPI)—Merab Kurashvili, a Soviet exchange student whose attempt to return to Moscow caused a flap between U.S. Immigration officials and Soviet Embassy authorities, boarded an Aeroflot flight home early today, when immigration authorities determined he was leaving voluntarily.

The incident grew out of an apparent suicide attempt by Kurashvili as he was being taken to Kennedy International Airport Sunday for a flight back to Moscow. He slashed his throat and his wrists and tried to jump from a Soviet mission truck as it drove him and another student accused of shoplifting to the airport.

Kurashvili, 36, boarded the plane after a number of delays beginning Tuesday when the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service demanded the right to interview him to see if he really wanted to go home or was being coerced.

Soviet officials remained secretive about the matter and went so far as to defy the U.S. request for an interview, and attmpted to put the student aboard the plane Wednesday night. But U.S. authorities refused to let the plane take off and held it at Kennedy until they interviewed him.

The interview finally granted, the plane with Kurashvili aboard took off more than eight hours behind schedule at 2:36 a.m. EST.

Kurashvili, an exchange student at the University of California, was allegedly involved in a shoplifting incident in Berkeley. On Sunday night, after Soviet officials had taken him to New York, he slashed his wrists and throat and tried to jump from a Soviet mission truck as he was being taken to Kennedy airport with another student, also allegedly involved in the Berkeley incident.

MERAB KURASHVILI
Center of a flap

An interview with immigration officials had been scheduled for Tuesday morning but Kurashvili did not show up reportedly because he was ill. Immigration officials continued to press for an interview and told Soviet officials in Washington Tuesday that they would not allow Kurashvili to leave before the interview was granted.

The Soviets refused and attempted to put Kurashvili on a Wednesday night plane to the Soviet Union.

U.S. officials, alerted to the attempt, said the plane could leave but Kurashvili could not, until officials spoke to him.

The other student, Gregori Smelyi, returned to the Soviet Union Sunday. The shoplifting charges were dropped.

Drive Opened For Sailboat

The Mill Valley Youth Commission has kicked off its drive to raise funds for a sailboat with a telephone solicitation drive which has netted $125 in pledges.

Commissioner Jack B. Benjamin said 32 youngsters will take part in the fund drive to raise $2,500 for a boat and materials.

The boat will be used in a sailing program connected with the physical education department at Edna Maguire School in Mill Valley.

Benjamin said the money will be used to buy the hull of a sailboat for an advanced sailing class and for wood to be fashioned into spars for the boat.

$40,000 Grant For Larval Study

A $40,000 grant to study the larval development of marine invertebrates along the Northern California coast has been awarded to the University of the Pacific for use at its Pacific Marine Station at Dillon Beach.

Dr. James A. Blake, assistant professor of biology at the marine station, will direct the two-year project.

The grant was from the National Science Foundation.

Three Auto Makers Can Hike Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government has given three of the four big car makers permission to raise their prices again, this time to pay for government-ordered safety devices.

The Price Commission said the increases averaged less than 1 per cent, and the auto companies agreed not to ask for any more hikes on 1972 models except under unusual circumstances.

Late last year, Ford, General Motors and American Motors won the right to raise their 1972 model prices by an average of 2.6 per cent. Chrysler Corp. also won a general increase last year amounting to 4.5 per cent but it said it would not need the additional boost granted the other three Wednesday because the earlier increase covered the new expenses.

Wednesday's increase will mean the car buyers will be paying the cost of seat belts linked with a buzzer and light system that warn the driver when his belt is not fastened. In addition, Ford will use some of the increase to pay for a better exhaust system and GM for improved exhaust and bumpdr systems.

The increase for American was 0.83 per cent, for Ford 1.07 per cent, and for GM 0.9 per cent.

"Unless unusual circumstances occur, American motors, Chrysler, Ford and General Motors have agreed not to seek additional price increases on 1972 model passenger cars, trucks and optional equipment," the commission said in announcing the increases.

Ex-Mental Patient Hijacks A Jetliner

DALLAS (UPI) — FBI agents and police stormed a hijacked jetliner sitting on the main runway and captured a formal mental patient who had demanded $2 million ransom, parachutes and eight box lunches for himself and the crew.

The drama ended last night about seven hours after the bright orange and red plane was seized by the self-admitted narcotics user.

"Today is the last day that I, Billy Gene Hurst, is going to exist," the hijacker told his captured crew. "Tomorrow a new individual will be born."

Hurst, 22, hijacked the plane yesterday between Houston and Dallas. He permitted the 94 passengere to get off the plane when Flight 38 landed at Love Field at 2:50 p.m. But he held the crew —four hostesses and three men —until 8:51 p.m. when they escaped after noticing Hurst had been distracted by something in the rear of the plane.

Federal and city police stormed the plane and captured the hijacker at 9:26 p.m.

"We went on the plane and captured him," said Gordon Shanklin, special agent in charge of the FBI in Dallas. "The plane was surrounded by police and everybody of course. He didn't come out so we went in and got him."

Hurst was charged with violating the U.S. code that deals with air piracy. He was denied bond because he was charged with a capital offense. He was held in the Dallas County Jail.

Hurst held the plane and its crew captive for six hours and 36 minutes. During this time he demanded $2 million, jungle survival gear, lunches, cigarettes, parachutes and a .357 Magnum pistol. The Republic National Bank, the city's largest, sent $1 million to the airport in small bills.

Hurst, a 5-foot-8, 220-pound former high school football player told his captive crew he had an IQ of 138 —near genius level —and hated women. The brown-eyed, brown haired Hurst, wearing a pin stripe suit and clutching a black zippered flight bag said contained dynamite, handed a stewardess a note.

"I have some demands I want met," the note said. "Either you meet them or I'll kill everybody on the airplane."

Later a crewman radioed:

"About that dope, he said he had been trying strictly grass. Said he tried heroin, but didn't like it."

A psychiatrist told the crew to offer him some beer "because it will make him flake out." But Hurst refused the beer and throughout most of the six hours he just sat quietly in the first class lounge clutching the flight bag.

Authorities said later the bag contained personal belongings. Hurst carried one gun with him — a small .22-caliber pistol — and demanded the larger Magnum be sent on board.

Hurst demanded and received parachutes, high-top hunting boots, a rope, a machete and other survival gear.

Cong Steps Up Warring Near Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas attacked a South Vietnamese base just outside Saigon today and the U.S. command reported the first Communist attack on the big American airfield at Da Nang in nearly two years. Heavy fighting also erupted along South Vietnam's Central Coast.

As the fighting grew in intensity throughout Vietnam, the military situation in neighboring Laos deteriorated and Communist Pathet Lao forces claimed the capture of the American Central Intdlligence Agency (CIA)-operated base at Long Cheng. Government sources denied it but acknowledged the outpost was nearly surrounded by North Vietnamese.

The attack near Saigon along with steadily escalating Viet Cong incidents in widely separated parts of the country added up to what allied intelligence said was preparation for a forthcoming Rommunist offensive.

The mortar attack against Da Nang was the first since April 1, 1970 and U.S. military spokesmen said 10 rounds of 82mm mortar fire hit the helicopter base at Da Nang early today. The attack caused no damage but military spokesmen acknowledge that use of the mortars, which have an effective range of 3,000 yards indicated the Communists managed to get uncomfortably close to the northern city.

As the fighting increased in South Vietnam and Laos the U.S. command announced that five Americans were killed and 47 wounded in the war last week. It brought to 45,632 the total of GIs killed in 11 years of warfare.

on the budget—introduced only Wednesday—would begin "immediately." He added Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, has asked him to ready the budget for floor delivery on April 1 and "I'll deliver."

To speed up committee deliberations—the budget normally doesn't reach the floor until late May or June—noncontroversial items will be skipped over and adopted by "consent calendar."

Collier is aiming for a April 15-May 15 floor delivery.

"I want to do every damn thing we can to get that damn thing out of here. I haven't had a vacation yet," said the crusty legislative veteran referring to the record-length 1971 session.

Collier and Brown both are Democrats, but of a different bent.

Collier is regarded as a conservative. For example, he wants to provide more money for schools by reducing Reagan's budget in other areas.

"I try to get a dollar's worth for the taxpayers' dollar, try to determine what's a good business arrangement and what isn't," the senator said.

Brown's fiscal philosophy is more liberal.

"You define what programs people demand and need. Then you allocate the dollars," he said. "If there is insufficient revenue, you look around and find the revenue.

"If that's impossible you designate priorities. And my priorities are 'people' instead of 'things.' If it came down to spending a dollar on capital outlay or EOP (Economic Opportunity Program), I'd spend it on EOP. I think it's far more important to invest in human beings."

Collier is 69 and in his 34th year as a senator. Brown is 37 and in only his 8th year as an assemblyman.

Collier represents the Cascades, the Siskiyous and the north coast redwoods. Brown represents the Haight-Ashbury, the Tenderloin, the Fillmore and part of Chinatown.

They get along great.

"I so admire that man's intelligence. I think he has a tremendous political future," said Collier.

"We have an excellent relationship. It's a strange thing, because our backgrounds are so different. My grandfather owned 125 Negro slaves and my father a half dozen."

Brown described Collier as "one of the most knowledgable legislators here. His incredible power of recollection is invaluable because he's able literally to give us the facts on why programs came into existence—who lobbied for them, who lobbied against them—while at the same time, on most issues, being people-oriented contrary to his reputation."

Collier's father was the Alabama attorney general. His grandfather was Alabama governor and chief justice.

"My father was a Pullman porter in Texas and my mother was a domestic in somebody's kitchen," Brown said. "I put my own way through school — (San Francisco State and Hastings College of Law) and since then I haven't looked back. I've got no desire to go back to Texas."

Beating Case Count Reduced

A reduced misdemeanor charge of battery has been filed in Marin Municipal Court against Johnnie Harris, 25, of Richmond, originally charged with feloniously assaulting a San Rafael woman.

A pretrial conference has been set for Wednesday.

Harris was arrested Nov. 26 after Pamela Black of 45 Woodland Avenue said Harris had beaten her following an argument.

Sausalitan Booked In Morals Case

A 44-year-old Sausalito man was booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of rape, oral copulation and sex perversion, sodomy and possession of marijuana.

Don Bailey, of 61 San Carlos Avenue, was stopped by Larkspur police for a routine traffic matter about 3 a.m. and arrested after a young couple in the car with him told police he had taken them to his boat in Sausalito, raped the woman and forced both under death threat to perform unnatural acts.

Sausalito police, called to Larkspur to make the arrest, said the 20-year-old Fairfax woman and 23-year-old Woodacre man were picked up by Bailey while hitchhiking in San Anselmo. Officers said the pair went with Bailey to his boat in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor after he promised them jobs as cook and maintenance man for the craft.

The couple said they convinced Bailey to take them back to San Anselmo and were headed there when Larkspur police stopped them.

Police made a search of the vessel and said they found about a half-ounce of marijuana in a bag of cookies.

Bailey was being held on $10,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

follow that used in some foreign countries where the value of land is taxed but not improvements placed on it. He said much valuable land in Marin — which may be unimproved or under improved — goes under assessed.

Filante did not indicate how he, as a county supervisor, would go about changing the state's tax structure, which is the responsibility of the Legislature.

Filante, who has lived in Marin for 12 years, said he also plans to campaign for prison reform, improved public transportation and conservation.

He lives at 33 Wolfe Grade in Kentfield with his wife, Margaret, and daughter. He has two sons living away from home.

Filante is a graduate of the University of Minnesota Medical School and did his residency at Los Angeles General Hospital.

He is a member of the Marin Alternative, Ecumenical Association for Housing, president of Congregation Rodef Sholem and a member of the environmental health committee of the county's medical society.

PRISON

O'Brien explained that the prison obtains most of its foodstuffs and other supplies through contracts arranged by state Department of Corrections offices outside Marin County.

When Gov. Ronald Reagan announced last Thursday he hoped to phase out San Quentin by 1974, Warden Nelson said, "I hate to see the old ship go down." He predicted San Quentin's closing would have financial implications to Marin businessmen.

According to Ritter, San Quentin spends $223,000 a year on gas and electricity; $95,000 on water; $37,758 for telephone service; $5,000 for garbage; $14,177 on the San Quentin Post Office, and $592 for telegraph service.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said last week Marin taxpayers would save up to $300,000 through shutdown of the prison.

TROOPS

what the next troop withdrawal figure would be.

He said, however, that the latest move by Nixon would mean an average rate of withdrawal of 23,300 troops over the three month period to get down to the 69,000 troop level. The last troop withdrawal, Laird said, averaged 22,500.

It was the seventh public troop withdrawal figure made by Nixon since he entered the White House.

Laird noted that when Nixon took office, there were 549,500 U.S. troops in Vietnam. He said the latest announcement means a reduction of the armed forces there by 87 per cent.

Laird said he was confident the Vietnamization program has "moved forward with sufficient vigor and progress." he declared the South Vietnamese are now in a position to defend their own security.

The highest authorized troop level in Vietnam was 549,500 men, but the highest actual troop level achieved was 6,100 below that in April, 1969.

Nixon began pulling troops out of Vietnam in June, 1969, with an announcement that 25,000 would come home by August 31 of that year. That lowered the troop ceiling to 524,500 and amounted to an average pullout of 10,000 men per month.

Laird said today's announcement means that by May 1 approximately 48,000 troops in South Vietnam will be Army personnel, 4,500 will be Navy and 16,000 Air Force.

Indian Valley Colleges Opens Fall Registering

Students may enroll with Barbara Fouts, Room OC-162, at the College of Marin, either in person or by telephoning, or can sign up at the first class meeting, according to a course schedule of the new institution.

Offered in the colleges' temporary quarters are courses in history, art, biology, business, English, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology. Classes begin Feb. 7.

About 450 students took classes in the fall.

Worker Hurt In Bridge Fall

A construction worker on the Richardson Bay Bridge suffered multiple fractures yesterday when he apparently lost his balance and fell 27 feet to a concrete pad near the south end of the span.

Verl J. Carter, 39, of Oakland, was reported in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital. A spokesman said he suffered multiple facial injuries, a skull fracture and a broken right wrist, hip and pelvis and a fractured jaw.

Orville H. Stagg, project office manager for Massmann Construction Co., a Missouri firm working on the bridge widening project, said Carter was erecting a form onto which concrete was to be poured for a support column when he apparently lost his balance and fell at about 11:30 a.m.

Japan Boosts Defense Outlay

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan's cabinet yesterday approved a budget for the 1972 fiscal year calling for the largest defense expenditure for any year since the end of World War II.

The total budget for the fiscal year starting April 1 provides for an outlay of $37.241 billion, up 24 per cent from this year's budget, and the largest ever for Japan.

Park 'Should Serve Only Community'

The planned county park for Petaluma should serve community needs rather than attract persons on a regional basis, the Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission told county officials last night.

Commission secretary Phyllis Brewer said the commission told Supervisor Philip L. Joerger and county parks director Joseph Rodota that proposdd overnight camper facilities should be stricken from park plans.

Joerger said he had been approached about making a sports complex of soccer and baseball fields at the 20-acre parcel, which is adjacent to the city's five-acre boat launching ramp on the Petaluma River. He invited the commission to join a park study committee in surveying the site and recommending what its best use would be.

The commission said the land may best be used as an all-purpose park with picnic facilities and playground equipment.

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission also:

LIGHTING — Recommended the city council replace old lights at McNear Park with new metal hallied lights to reduce utility costs and upgrade lighting.

CLASS — Approved a new art class for children to be taught by Gerald Ricksecker.

INSTRUCTORS — Recommended that the city council set a new policy requiring instructors for recreation classes to be processed through the city personnel office for routine background checks.

gressive tax beginning from an unspecified exempt amount up to the one-half million dollar mark.

McGovern also proposed that "every man, woman and child" receive an annual payment from the government, regardless of the wealth of the recipient.

Elsewhere in the campaign, Florida continued as a battleground. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., told an audience at St. Petersburg that a deaf administration —not a silent majority —is what afflicts the country. When it comes to the unemployment problem, Humphrey said, the administration "just stands there as if it is paralyzed and stupid as a stunned ox."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., meanwhile, reiterated his intention of withdrawing his name from the March 14 Florida primary.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., campaigning in Wisconsin for that state's April 4 primary, told a news conference he opposes granting amnesty to youths who left the country to avoid being drafted.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., who is entered in the Florida and Pennsylvania primaries, released the first of three presidential position papers from her Washington office, attacking the foreign aid program. By supporting militarists and repressive governments, she said, America has become the "arsenal of reactionary violence" instead of the "arsenal of democracy."

Enrollment Drops By Four Students

STANFORD (UPI)—Stanford University has reported a decrease in enrollment—by exactly four students.

Winter quarter enrollment at the privately endowed university was 11,145, registrar Harvey Hall reported Wednesday, compared with 11,149 last year.

OBITUARIES

Wilda And Leonard Allen Succumb

Private graveside services for Wilda S. and Leonard W. Allen, apartment managers at 544 Canal Street, San Rafael will be held Saturday at Glenhaven Memorial Park in San Bernardino.

Allen, 70, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. His wife, Wilda, 69, died Sunday after suffering an apparent heart attack.

Both were natives of Iowa and had been residents of Marin for three years, after living in Southern California.

Surviving Allen are three sisters, Leona Highfill of Alamosa, Colo.; Winifred Stramsky of Wellman, Iowa, and Maxine Chadwick of Panorama City, Los Angeles County; and two brothers, Horace Allen of San Rafael and Warren Allen of Novato.

Suriviving Mrs. Allen are two brothers, John Martin of Minneapolis and Clarence Martin of Mason City, Iowa, and a sister, Marie Dykstra of Pella, Iowa.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the Heart Fund.

San Rafael rainfall data.

Figures kept by the Independent-Journal and Crocker Bank in San Rafael indicate that this could be the driest season since 1963-64, when only 20.57 inches was recorded all winter. That season, the total through the end of January was 14.47 inches. This year's total to date for San Rafael was 10.6 inches today.

The 1938-39 rainy season — the record low of the 20th Century — produced but 16.69 inches.

whatsoever for him to speak in defense or mitigation, if he is in fact the offender."

The 40-year-old pastor of St. Michael's Church in Milwaukee was also tried in a local court for the same conduct but that action was dismissed.

Earlier Groppi had been convicted of resisting arrest during an open housing demonstration in August, 1967. In that case, he won a Supreme Court ruling on Jan. 25th, 1971, that he had a right to try to get the place of trial changed to somewhere other than Milwaukee. The state never pursued the matter further.

The opinion said there is no occasion to define the process precisely in Groppi's case because the Wisconsin assembly acted two days after the conduct had occurred without giving notice of any kind or opportunity to answer. He was confined in the county jail at the time and could easily have been given notice or compelled to appear, Burger noted.

A 37-year Sausalito resident, Long resides at 46 Bulkley Avenue with his wife, Betty. The couple has a grown son.

New President For Marin Museum Unit

James F. McConnell of 653 McClay Road, Novato, is scheduled to become president of the Marin Museum Society at a board meeting at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the Novato prehistory museum in Novato Creek Park.

McConnell will succeed David Dippel, acting director of the prehistory museum, who will become managing director.

HARLAN MOUNT

Harlan F. Mount, 92, longtime Petaluma poultry rancher, died yesterday at a Sebastopol convalescent hospital after a long illness.

Mount was born in Indiana and had lived in California for 60 years and in Petaluma for 40 years. After his retirement, Mount had lived in Rohnert Park. His wife, Rose, died in 1967.

He is survived by two daughters, Berta Mount of Concord and Erma Sparacino of Martinez, and two grandchildren.

ELMA HERBOTH

Elma J. Herboth, 89, of San Anselmo, widow of Ben Herboth, retired hardware merchant, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Herboth was a native of Sutter County and had lived in Marin for 27 years, residing at 16 Hawthorne Avenue before entering the convalescent hospital.

Surviving are a daughter, Jeanne Mallett of San Rafael; a sister, Norma Kells of Yuba City; a brother, Larry Winship of Tiburon, and five grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

HELEN P. DRIESCHMAN

Private funeral for Helen P. Drieschman, 62, of 5 Inverness Way, Inverness, was held yesterday.

Mrs. Drieschman, wife of Donald Drieschman, died yesterday morning at her home after an illness.

She was a native of Canada and had lived in Marin for one year and in California for 34 years.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a daughter, Karren Gann of Inverness; a son, Scott Drieschman of San Diego; a brother, Carl Pipher of Tucson, and two grandchildren.

Services were followed by cremation.

PEARL CHASE

Funeral for Pearl S. Chase, 71, of Novato, widow of retired Army M/Sgt. Frank Chase, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato.

Mrs. Chase of 815 Diablo Avenue, died Sunday at San Francisco hospital, where she had been a patient since suffering a heart attack late last month.

Mrs. Chase was a member of the Novato Garden Club and had been a resident of Novato for seven years.

Surviving are a son, Jack A. Beets Sr. of San Francisco; her mother, Sarah Bush of San Rafael; three sisters, Helen Fisher of San Rafael, Esther Marie Kepharti of San Rafael, and Ruby Hughes of El Segundo, Los Angeles County; two brothers, Roche Bush of El Cerrito, and H. FREEWAY DEATH

A meat truck skidded out of control on the Nimitz Freeway in Oakland yesterday, slamming head-on into an automobile and killing one person. The truck driver, unhurt, said he lost control of his truck when traffic in front of him slowed down. The truck jumped a center divider, then struck the car. The dead woman was identified as Gladys A. Grambling, 66, of Aberdeen, Wash.

Prizes Are Awarded In Art Festival

The Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival has awarded $900 in prizes in four categories in ios annual juried art show.

Winning works may be seen at Genesis Gallery in Mill Valley through Jan. 30.

Sandy Schindler, cochairman of the art show, announced the winners yesterday. First, second and third prizes and Honorable mention winners in each category are:

Cash prizes are $100 for first, $75 for second and $50 for third.

The judge's award went to Robert Hernandez for his graphic work, "Forty Loves."

Mrs. Schindler said a grand opening and champagne reception will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. tomorrow at the gallery, 2 Miller Avenue. The public is invited.

Other show cochairmen were Dorothy Zimerman and Sarah Devlin.

Two Inmates Can't Be Own Attorneys

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court yesterday refused to allow two San Quentin convicts accused of stabbing another inmate and slaying a guard to act as their own attorneys.

The judge said Earl Billy Gibson and Lawrence Justice, both 28, "cannot safely defend themselves" in a capital case, and that the two men need lawyers.

The men had asked either to represent themselves or have attorneys of their choosing appointed at public expense. The second request also was turned down by the judge.

The convicts mentioned Marvin Stender, an Oakland lawyer active in prison reform, as one of the attorneys they wanted.

Gardiner avpointed the public defender's office to represent Gibson, and San Rafael attorney Lawrence A. Cowen to represent Justice. Both convicts indicated, however, they would not cooperate with their new lawyers.

The men are accused of stabbing inmate Herman Johnson, 25, in the prison exercise yard on July 19, and, two days later, the knife-slaying of an officer, Leo G. Davis, who was guarding Johnson in the prison hospital.

Johnson apparently had become a marked man because he testified in a trial of seven Soledad Prison inmates accused of murdering a guard there.

County Plan Review Meeting Is Tonight

The City-County Planning Council of Marin, meeting today at 8 p.m. at Civic Center, is expected to continue review of about 30 revisions to the proposed countywide general plan.

The first review by the agency in November ended with the City of San Rafael objecting to one revision calling for creation of a joint city-county agency to oversee compliance by the cities with the general plan.

Branding it a "superagency," San Rafael officials said they would oppose any proposal that would take away local rule.

They urged that the proposal be modified or deleted, since such an agency would alter the cities' rights to approve or disapprove community growth and planning.

Officials from Marin's 11 cities are expected tonight to voice their opinions on the plan.

Once revisions are adopted, the planning council and county planning department hope to have the proposed countywide plan adopted as an interim planning guide.

Tools Stolen

Tools valued at $700 were stolen yesterday from North Bay Transport, Casa Grande Road and Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, police reported. A door was pried open to gain entry.

Drive In Novato For Preserving Landmarks

A group called Citizens to Preserve Novato's Historic Landmarks has started a campaign for formation of a Novato historical society to work for preservation of historic buildings.

The group, which has been working almost four years to preserve Pioneer Memorial Cemetery, has written to the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission urging city leadership toward forming an historical organization, according to Margaret A. Coady, group secretary.

"There are a lot of interested citizens, but the people aren't getting together," Mrs. Coady said. "They need to be tied together in a united effort to preserve what our founding fathers started."

Novato's first post office on South Novato Boulevard is among the structures that should be preserved, Mrs. Coady said.

Antique Show, Sale To Benefit AFC Program

A benefit antique show and sale for the International Scholarship Program of the American Field Service will be held tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday at the Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael.

The fourth annual show will be held from 1 to 9:30 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, according to Mrs. Richard DeLew, chairman of the show.

Previous shows have netted approximately $1,000 for the scholarship fund, she said.

Thousands of antiques of all kinds will be on display for sale by 25 antique dealers from all over California, she said. Booth rental pays for the cost of the country club and the student fund receives proceeds from the sale of door tickets, she said.

Free Dog Care, Instruction Classes

The Humane Society of Marin will hold free dog care and instruction classes at the Humane Education Center, Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, Ignacio, starting Feb. 19.

The five-week course will be conducted Saturdays, 10 a.m. to noon, through March 18 by members of the Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club. Registration may be completed at the first class.

Yippies Eye San Diego As Their 1972 Chicago

By CURTIS J. SITOMER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SAN DIEGO — "All roads lead to San Diego. Spend the summer in San Diego."

A chamber of commerce pitch?

Perhaps an open invitation from the Republican National Committee to garner a vast audience for President Nixon's renomination here next August?

Not a chance. The clarion call comes from the "yippies" — the beckoning of Jerry Rubin, Abbie Hoffman, et al for youth across the nation to flock to San Diego to protest the workings of the Nixon administration.

"San Diego will be where it's at," says one local youth organizer here. "Nobody's interested in Miami (where Democrats will gather to choose a presidential nominee a little earlier). Nixon's the one we're after."

The city is concerned. Some say they fear "another Chicago," where 10,000 young political demonstrators engaged in violent clashes with Chicago police during the Democratic convention in 1968.

But most say it won't happen here. And this guarded optimism is championed by the mild-mannered, unassuming young politician who recently slipped into the San Diego's mayor's chair.

"If (Mayor Richard J.) Daley was the difference in Chicago, Pete Wilson could be the factor in keeping the peace here," says a long-time political observer.

Mayor Peter Wilson is a moderate Republican —a Nixon backer —who a month ago took the reins of California's second largest city and inherited the host role for the Republican presidential conclave. He approaches the mayor's office enthusiastically. But he confesses the job as host is something of a "fringe burden."

Despite threats from segments from the radical left and the warnings of some on the right, Wilson said in an interview, he considers "another Chicago" highly unlikely.

The mayor says "hospitality" will be his byword — even to peaceful dissenters. But he stresses the modifier, "peaceful."

"Sure we expect some dissent —legitimately performed. We won't allow that which will interfere with the rights of others," Wilson adds.

As an initial gesture, Wilson has to meet with him and his staff to work out, among other things, logistics of housing and "legal" demonstrations.

Some city officials have suggested that during the convention protesters be given free access to Fiesta Island. This 440-acre land mass, which juts into San Diego's scenic Mission Bay, could easily accommodate thousands of campers and tenters.

However, this suggestion is already being attacked on all sides. Would-be protesters call the area a "suicide swamp" where police could isolate them conveniently from downtown convention facilities. There is only a single access road.

On the other hand, local citizens complain that yippies and others should not be provided free campgrounds when thousands of others will be paying premium rates for housing in the area.

The flip side of Wilson's hospitality key to the city appears to be inscribed "Always ready."

"Yes, we will be prepared for any contingency," he states. An elaborate network of law enforcement — including local police, sheriff's officers, and emergency forces from surrounding counties — already is being pieced together.

And although city officials are reluctant to discuss them, contingency plans for processing mass arrests, setting up temporary courtrooms, and establishing legal liaisons between police and demonstrators are also in the works.

San Diego has applied for a federal grant of $920,287 to implement much of its convention-security and police-preparedness training.

However, Wilson insists, the main emphasis will be on "keeping the peace," through open communications and honoring individual rights.

"I think we've learned much from Miami (the Republican site in 1968), Washington (May Day 1971), and Chicago," he says.

At present, two main youth protest groups foreshadow convention planning here. Both say they are committed to nonviolence.

The San Diego Convention coalition — headed by a local state college activist, Bill Ritter — says his group will challenge the Nixon administration on the war in Indo-China and domestic policies — such as party structure, judicial appointments, and welfare practices. This group, which calls itself an umbrella for dissident students, women's liberation forces, antiwar GIs, and others, plans to promote teach-ins, educational films, and theatrical presentations on the war, economy, health care, and Chicano and black movements.

The other group, the newly formed Community Congress is perhaps more militant. It has grown out of a largely successful local drug abuse and counseling coalition. Its thrust is more toward social reform than politics.

Community Congress members say they will use the convention to call attention to a need for federal funding for free drug clinics, ex-convict rehabilitation agencies, halfway houses for runaways and unmarried pregnant girls, and a criminal-justice reform task force.

It is too early to tell, most agree, what the impact of these and other protests will be at the Republican convention.

Radical leaders say if the issues are "hot," they could attract a half million young people. Local officials admit that just the presence of even half that number could throw this surfside resort city into turmoil.

However, local convention planners, including Mayor Wilson, predict the issues won't coalesce in the end to attract hordes of youth here.

Annexation Makes Gain

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission last night approved annexation of the 33-acre Olive Ridge Tennis Club site to the city of Novato.

Both the city and the developer, contractor Attila Quartaroli of San Francisco, supported the annexation, Robert Peterson, the commission's executive officer, said.

An adjoining six-acre industrial site, which was included in the annexation application was deleted from the motion approving the annexation, Peterson said.

Plans for the multimillion-dollar tennis club, located at Olive Avenue and Deer Island Lane, were tentatively approved by the Novato City Council which on Tuesday prezoned the site for commercial use.

The developer envisions about 27 indoor and outdoor tennis courts — some public, some private — a tennis bowl for spectators, swimming pool and sleeping accommodations for visiting professionals.

Interim Pastor Takes The Pulpit

Pastor Keith Holman of the Bay Area Counseling Service will speak at the 11 a.m. worship service Saturday at the Novato Seventh-Day Adventist Church, 495 San Marin Drive.

Holman, of Napa, will take the pulpit while the regular pastor, Preston Smith, is attending a conference.

Footprinting Experiment In Controlling Methadone Dosages

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new system of photographing feet might become the way to make sure drug addicts in methadone programs are not getting more of the synthetic drug than they should, according to federal officials.

And the foot photos might even eventually replace fingerprinting for drug addicts with criminal records, they added.

Dr. Jerome H. Jaffe, director of President Nixon's Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention, told a news conference the footprint system was tested in the District of Columbia's Narcotics Treatment Administration (NTA). He said it seems to promise an end to the growing number of patients who register at two different methadone clinics and get twice the drug substitute they should.

Methadone is a cheap, but still addictive, substitute for heroin being used increasingly to combat addiction to that drug.

A patient puts the ball of his right foot on a glass plate on a machine looking something like an elongated tool box. A photo is taken of the foot from the bottom and is developed on polaroid film in a short time. The photo goes into a file. When a patient presents himself for his methadone dose, his foot photo is taken and checked with the file to make sure he is not using an assumed name to get extra methadone. Ultimately, the file checking could be done by computer, almost instantly, linking the various programs in a given area.

Jaffe said the benefits of the footprint idea are that:

It gets away from a law enforcement context, because law officers use fingerprints.

The footprint is as good as fingerprints to identify the individual —tha whorls and lines are unique to each person.

The footprint system, when tied to a code, can keep records confidential.

Slice Of Prison Land Is Wanted

When San Quentin Prison is abandoned by the state in the next several years, the Marin Municipal Water District wants a piece of the property for a sewage treatment plant, district directors agreed yesterday.

The water board voted to send a letter to Gov. Ronald Reagan asking that an area of approximately 10 acres be reserved for a treatment facility when the prison is closed.

According to J. Dietrich Stroeh, principal engineer, the plant would be a discharge point for sewage from southeast Marin which will be handled by a sanitation district which the water district is now taking steps to form.

He said the Brown and Caldwell 1967 master plan for sewage treatment and disposal in Marin calls for such a plant on San Quentin Point to treat and release wastes from the southern part of the county.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

AGREEMENT — Referred to the improvement district advisory committee a request from the Tiburon Sanitary District to join a proposed sanitation district planned to handle Southern Marin sewage.

SUBCOMMITTEE — Appointed William Bush, past president of the Marin County Board of Realtors and Jeanette Pomeroy of San Rafael to fill vacancies on the environmental advisory subcommittee to Improvement District A.

FORMATION — Asked Marin supervisors to begin formal procedures to form the south county sanitation district which will collect, treat, dispose of and reclaim wastes in that area.

RATE STUDY — Hired Brown and Caldwell engineers and Stone and Youngberg financial consultants to review district water rates and recommend changes in the rate structure, at a cost not to exceed $2,500.

RELOCATION — Signed an agreement with the state Division of Highways for relocating about 3,600 feet of line south of Richardson Bay Bridge at a cost of $200,000 to the state and $20,000 to the district. Relocation is necessitated by the current widening of Highway 101.

REROUTING — Postponed until its next meeting a proposal to hire consultants to prepare an environmental impact study of district plans to relocate its planned Southern Marin line to run through Baltimore Canyon near Larkspur.

EXTENSION — Approved a $22,324 extension to serve the new Howard Johnson restaurant and motel on Shoreline Highway. Total cost for the added line will be paid by the applicant.

CONTRACTS — Awarded contracts to these low bidders. McKesson Chemical of Union City, $18,505 for 530 tons of hydrated lime; Stauffer Chemical Co. of San Francisco, $41,580 for 1,150 tons of aluminum sulfate; Georgia-Pacific Corp., $13,936 for 109 tons of liquid chlorine; Westco Pump Sales of San Francisco, $1,660 for a new pump; National Electrical Supply Co. of San Rafael, $8,606 for motor starters.

COMPLETION — Accepted completion notices and made final payments to these firms: Underground Construction Co. for construction of the Ross Reservoir and Ross Line; Grover Wilson, paving of access road, and Jorgensen and Davis Inc., building of the Scott Highlands Booster Station.

EMPLOYMENT — Voted to hire Ben Johnson as a laborer at $666 a month.

PURCHASE — Agreed to purchase two meters and transmitters for $3,242.

Line Blows, Power Out Downtown

A large portion of downtown San Rafael was without electrical power for more than two hours last night after a 22,000-volt underground line failed at Julia and A streets.

Robert A. Williams, district electrical superintendent for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., said the circuit broke with a loud report at 8:34 p.m. and plunged 142 customers into darkness.

The area of the blackout extended along Fourth Street between Cijos and C streets and included businesses up to a block north and south of Fourth, including the Independent-Journal building.

Police were called to escort customers from Macy's department store and the outage interrupted the showing of a film at the Rafael theater.

Bob Dinsmore of radio station KTIM, announcing a basketball game between the College of Marin and Contra Costa College, was unaware of the blackout and continued broadcasting until notified of the power failure 15 minutes later.

Williams said power was restored to part of the affected area at 9:50 p.m. and to the remainder by 11:18 p.m.

Behr Hails Action Halting Dam On Eel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Plans for a controversial $191 million, 553-foot-high dam on the Eel River have been shelved by the federal Bureau of Reclamation.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, author of unsuccessful legislation last year to protect the river from dams, hailed the news enthusiastically, but warned that the "water lobby" now will revive its campaign for another Mendocino County dam on the Eel, one long proposed at Dos Rios.

Bureau officials said yesterday they had found the dam was not economically feasible "at the present time" because of an inadequate market for the water it would store.

The bureau's announcement came two days after the state Fish and Game Department warned that the dam would flood 11,800 acres of prime wildlife habitat.

Behr, who has promised to fight again this year to preserve the Eel, Klamath and Trinity rivers in their wild and scenic state, said the shelving of the English Ridge dam "removes the camouflage from what has always been the greatest single threat to the Eel — namely Dos Rios."

He predicted that "in the next few years, or even sooner, the water lobby will continue its campaign to reverse the governor's veto and get on with the business of building Dos Rios."

The Dos Rios dam has been proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers. It would be 730 feet high and flood 150 square miles.

Gov. Ronald Reagan refused in 1969 to approve the dam, stopping the project because state approval was a prerequisite to final approval in Washington.

Behr had denounced the English Ridge dam as well last September, claiming the bureau had planned it behind closed doors.

"The only possible reason for English Ridge," he declared than, "is to satisfy the insatiable lust of the bureau's water engineers, who have a bad case of 'beaver fever' and simply can't stand the sight of free-flowing water."

Fight Erupts At College Election

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A fight broke out during student government elections at City College Wednesday when several Young Socialists refused to remove campaign signs near the cafeteria.

School officials said the order to remove the campaign posters came from Vester Flanagan, director of student activities at the school.

Flanagan and an aide, Chris Davis, were roughed up as well as Jim Tolani, editor of the campus newspaper The Guardsman, the officials said.

Three More Dogs Are Poisoned

A Marin County Humane Society official today said both "a sadistic nut running loose" and dog owners who allow their pets to roam are to blame for the poisonings of three dogs in Corte Madera.

One of the dogs, a German shorthair pointer owned by Robert Skelton, 1071 Meadowsweet Drive, died yesterday. Another Skelton dog and a third animal owned by Mrs. Robert Leis, 1411 Casa Buena Drive, survived but remain in an animal hospital.

It was the eighth reported case of poisoning in the past two months in Southern Marin — five were felled in Mill Valley — and the eleventh in the last three months, according to John N. Gill, director of operations for the humane society.

Gill said the poisonings apparently are the work of "a sadistic nut running loose" but also laid some of the blame on owners who allow their pets to roam.

"People are so fed up with animals running loose they're at their wits end. This is what happens when people don't care. If they do care, they'll keep their pets confined," he said.

The humane society considers two poisonings per year normal, he said.

Gill said signs have been posted in Corte Madera and Mill Valley warning of the poisonings. The humane society offers a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of animal poisoners, he said.

Meanwhile, San Francisco reported its fourth animal hanging in the past two weeks in the Edgehill Way area. The corpse of a white cat was found Tuesday hanging from a tree branch.

Attached to the noose was a note from the animal executioner denying he is a sado-masochist and saying, "I'm not going to kill animals anymore, just people."

Senate Beats House In Talking Rounds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, though it has far fewer members than the House, managed to do almost twice as much talking during the session which ended last month.

The 101 senators filled 21,928 pages of the Congressional Record with debate while the 435 House members filled 12,759.

Graham McPhail Files For A Dissolution

Graham H. McPhail, 75-year-old chairman of the board of McPhail Inc., has filed in Marin Superior Court for dissolution of his marriage of 37 years.

He said in a petition for dissolution that irreconcilable differences exist between him and his wife, Vera.

The McPhails were married in July 1934 in Reno, according to the petition, and separated last Aug. 24. The couple has two grown children, Graham Jr. and Mrs. Gail Gerrity.

McPhail asked the court to divide property at 40 Peacock Drive in San Rafael, checking and savings accounts, stock in the McPhail Co. and various automobiles and furnishings.

He asked the court not to award spousal support to his wife.

Governor Selects Director For OEC

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan Wednesday named Robert B. Hawkins Jr. as director of the state Office of Economic Opportunity, a post he has held in an acting capacity since last August.

The 30-year-old Hawkins became acting OEO director when Director Lewis K. Uhler was elevated to the post of assistant human relations secretary.

Fender Benders Present Problem

The minor "fender benders" accident may present a dilemma to the car owner. He wants to get his car fixed with the least expense or trouble.

Often his own insurance carries a $100 deductible. The repair bill may be a little more than that. But asking his own insurance company to pay for part of the repairs may cause his own rates to rise. The "accident-free discount" may be lost. The increased rates could equal the cost of the reapir.

If another car wjs involved, it might be hard to collect from the driver, even if he was at fault. If the other driver denies liability, his insurance company will usually not pay. His interest in keeping his own record clean with his own insurance company, and lower rates, is just as strong as that of driver number 1.

Even if the minor accident is investigated by the police and the other driver is given a citation, it is not a sure bet driver number 1 can establish fault. If the other driver merely forfeits bail, pleads no contest or is found guilty after trial, that determination does not establish civil liability, because this is a criminal proceeding and it only determines whether a law has been violated — not whether the driver is liable for the damages. Only if he pleads guilty or admits fault can this be used in civil courts.

The driver can sue in small claims court. Disputes involving less than $300 may be heard in small claims court, and neither party can have an attorney. Evidence is produced informally. It offers a cheap, fast remedy. Bring diagrams and have witnesses there. Bring in also your damage estimates. Be prepared to explain your version of the accident as briefly and as convincingly as possible. The other driver will have the same opportunity. He might also counter-claim, saying that you are at fault and request a judgment against you.

If you are the plaintiff and you lose in small claims court that's the end of the line. There is no right to appeal. Only the defendant may appeal if he loses. If you lose you then must pay for your own damages or have your insurance company pay, subject to the deductible.

If you win a judgment, there may still be a problem in collecting payment. If the defendant has insurance, his insurance company will usually pay the judgment immediately. If not, the sheriff may have to attach wages or other assets.

THUMBS OUT IN RAIN

Two teen-age girls stand on rock as they attempt to hitch a ride home at Tillamook, Ore., as a truck trailer rig drives through waist-high water. Heavy rains and melting snows in the Coast Range have caused rivers to crest and forced closing of Highway 101. The Tillamook Board of Commissioners yesterday called a "state of emergency" as the highway was closed — both north and south.

Cong Charges U.S. Of A Nuclear Ploy

PARIS (UPI)—The Viet Cong charged at the Vietnam peace talks today that the U.S. military has herded one million South Vietnamese into concentration camps in order to clear a zone for the use of tactical nuclear weapons.

The United States and South Vietnam promptly labeled the charge "absurd."

Le Van Sau, the Viet Cong press spokesman, told a news conference after the 140th session that "the Americans are accelerating in February their plans of some months to deport one million South Vietnamese to create a free-fire zone for the use of tactical atomic weapons."

A press spokesman for the South Vietnamese delegation told reporters after the session ended in the usual deadlock that only 50,000 South Vietnamese were being moved south from five provinces because their lands were affected by floods.

He said the move was "entirely voluntary."

"As concerning the means of deportation, the Americans will vaké an air bridge in order to transport these persons from these provinces of South Vietnam," Sau said.

"We want to draw public attention to this crime in order to stop it," he said.

The American press spokesman, Stephen Ledogar, told the news conference after the session that the Viet Cong's accusations were "an absurdity."

He said this was "typical Sau."

Tornado In Alabama Fatal To Four

ENTERPRISE, Ala. (UPI)—A tornado roaring out of the darkness ripped through two trailer camps crowded with young soldiers and their families before dawn today, killing at least four persons and injuring 85 others.

Scores of others were left homeless, and Highway Patrol Capt. William Hornsby said "there's still a possibility of more bodies being found.

"With wreckage like this, it's hard to say," Hornsby noted.

A total of 50 trailer homes were destroyed and at least 50 others heavily damaged.

The howling funnel dipped into the Pinebrook and Dogwood Acres trailer parks about 1 a.m. EST. The parks are located about two miles west of Ft. Rucker, the Army's main helicopter pilot training base, and an Army spokesman estimated that about 95 per cent of the residents of the parks were GI's and their families.

Trees a foot and a half in diameter snapped under the whip-saw winds, power lines came tumbling down, and entire trailers were lifted from their pads and smashed to earth yards away, piles of twisted junk.

The downed power lines left the area in blackness even after the winds subsided, and emergency power had to be rigged and spotlights brought in before an organized search for victims could begin.

Sixty-five of the injured were treated at Lister Hospital on the Army base, and 15 were admitted there. Fifteen others were treated at the civilian hospital in Enterprise, and three were admitted.

Emergency facilities for those left homeless were set up in a church in the community, and Gov. George Wallace, who was in Florida to announce his candidacy for president declared the parks a disaster area.

Wallace said he was considering flying to the stricken area later in the day.

Gene Yeatman, whose family of five escaped injury although the winds lifted his trailer into the air, said "about 90 per cent of Pinebrook park was stroyed.

He recalled that everything got very still before the tornado struck, then "the inside of my trailer got real hot.

"I heard a roar. The trailer shook. I heard trees popping outside," Yeatman said. "Then the trailer was picked up and shook and then let down. My family was not hurt and the trailer wasn't damaged much."

Another resident of the park, David Reno, a soldier from Pittsburgh, Pa., said he was awakened by the screams of his wife, and moments later found himself lying in the street.

The Budget For National Guard

SACRAMENTO (KPI) —The California National Guard would be authorized 27,500 officers and enlisted men under Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget for 1972-73.

That would continue the guard at its present strength.

The governor called for the expenditure of $7.12 million in state funds next year for Army and Air National Guard operations, an increase of $381,255 from the current fiscal year.

Hitch-Hiker Dangers Are Not Necessary

The scene is familiar to anyone who drives in Marin:

As he approaches a highway on-ramp or connector road, a group of young people appear by the streetside, thumbing rides.

The car ahead puts on brakes without warning and swerves to pick up one or more of the youths. Our driver curses under his breath as he slams on his own brakes, hoping to avoid a collision.

Usually he does. But picking up hitch-hikers leads to many "rear-enders" in Marin traffic.

THE CALIFORNIA Highway Patrol frowns on the practice. Of late it has taken to handing out tickets to drivers who endanger other traffic by stopping on freeway approaches.

There also is a state law prohibiting hitching rides on a freeway or a freeway approach. However, if the hitch-hikers do not get beyond the "Freeway Entrance" sign, this law does not apply. So, although a driver may get a ticket for stopping to pick him up, the hitch-hiker himself is violating no law so long as he stays out of the roadway itself. One state law forbids hitching rides on a freeway or freeway entrance. Another declares: "No person shall stand in a roadway for the purpose of soliciting a ride."

HITCH-HIKING HAS become a natural way of moving about for many young people. Their excuse in Marin County has been lack of public transportation. Until very recently, it was an unchallengeable excuse.

The intra-county bus system inaugurated by the Golden Gate Bridge District takes away much of the reason for hitch-hiking. While the bus schedules leave something to be desired, the wait for a bus at a designated stop is unlikely to be any longer than the wait for a free ride at a place that is definitely not a designated stop and where the presence of hitch-hikers endangers their own and others' lives.

ALTHOUGH THE STATE law applies only on freeways and their approaches unless a person stands in the road itself to hitch a ride, there is nothing to stop cities and county from passing ordinances forbidding hitch-hiking except at designated places where the hazard is minimal.

Such an ordinance would benefit the hitch-hikers themselves, two ways: First, it would protect them where their own intelligence fails, by forbidding them from congregating at danger points — such as San Rafael's Second Street turnoff to the freeway, for a very obvious example. Second, it would enhance their chances to get rides, because drqvers would know the designated pickup points and would plan to pause there if they want to pick up riders. This system has worked very well on military bases.

Many of the hitch-hikers should be riding the buses. For those who don't have a quarter, such ordinances would be a service. And they would prevent many minor accidents as well as some major and even fatal ones.

'No-Fault' Insurance Bills To Produce Row In Legislature

By PHIL HANNA

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — "No-fault" automobile liability insurance will be the key consumer issue facing the 1972 session of the State Legislature if you can believe the words of consumer pressure group spokesmen.

Stymied by Sen. Alfred H. Song, D-Monterey Park, and his Judiciary Committee last session, the "no-fault" issue will be covered by nearly a dozen bills this year.

A RED-HOT ISSUE, "no-fault" pits insurance companies which want to avoid hefty payments awarded to claimants by the courts, against the plaintiff's trial lawyer who receives 30 to 50 per cent of the amount awarded to injured parties in law suits.

People who are injured in automobile accidents —there were five million in the United States last year — need immediate help to pay doctors' bills, hospitals and make up for lost income.

Insurance companies are forced to charge bigger and bigger premiums for automobile liability insurance by the huge judgments awarded to claimants.

Both sides of the argument are legitimate. The injured must be compensated and the cost of insurance needs to be reduced.

BILLS INTRODUCED last session by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, and Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, ran afoul of Song's committee. It was said that more study needed to be done before the committee could approve a "no-fault" plan.

Near the end of the session, Song declared that "some form of no-fault will be approved in 1972" but he didn't indicate which.

First, Song and several of the committee members had to take a trip to Puerto Rico and Washington, D.C., to study "no-fault" plans.

Committee spokesmen suggest that Beilenson will include lump sum payments for disfigurement or loss of a limb, but no compensation for the intangible "pain and suffering" in his "no-fault" bill this year. Fenton will re-introduce his defeated bill of 1971 with a few changes.

Senator Song plans to offer a bill sponsored by the defense (insurance company) lawyers.

Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, is said to be planning a form of "no-fault" insurance of his own which will be a carbon copy of legislation pushed last year by Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale. This would modify the current laws regarding liability insurance, limit the size of fees charged by attorneys, and place emphasis on comparative negligence vs. contributory negligence.

Most proposed plans will reduce the amount the attorneys can charge.

CALIFORNIA IS NOT alone in its attempt to institute "no-fault" insurance. In 1971, just Puerto Rico, Delaware, Florida, Massachusetts and the District of Columbia had the program, but 28 other states had bills in the works.

Senators Philip Hart, D-Mich., and Warren R. Magnuson, D-Wash., are at work on a national scheme which would permit lawsuits only in cases of "catastrophic" loss.

Last year the Congressional Record carried testimony which called auto insurance the "worst system imaginable . . . cruel, corrupt, self-righteous and wasteful while it goes about the business of failing."

It has been estimated that $1.4 billion annually goes to lawyers, which is estimated as 20 per cent of the legal profession's yearly income.

The California Trial Lawyers' Association is readying a plan, and believes it will have support from the State Bar Association for a "no-fault program which will cover immediate losses but not destroy the system."

Yes, "no-fault" insurance will open the door to a snake's nest before the 1972 legislative session is completed.

Career Education Article Helpful

Today I telephoned Mrs. Maybelle Speckmann, one of your reporters at your Mill Valley office. She is the author of the article "But No One's Ready," published by your Newspaper on Dec. 1, 1971.

I talked to her today in behalf of the Marin County Superintendent of Schools office, as well as the many students who have enrolled in my class since reading this article, in order to thank her for this fine article. Mrs. Speckmann is to be commended for being responsible in helping so many people who are now in my class who desire to take this training in order to become employable.

All also wish to thank you for giving us the opportunity to have Mrs. Speckmann help us and to have this fine writeup about our program appear in your newspaper.

Whose Ethics Wrong When People Fooled?

As we now proceed to the national weigh-in of the ethics of Messrs. Kissinger, Laird, Johnson and others plainly in view, compared with the ditto of Jack Anderson and Daniel Ellsberg, the referees can best have in mind one guideline from other troubled times in the century: "It's never too early to stop fooling the people."

Which will the spin of history come to rest on, the form or the content?

Boy With B-B Gun And Quiet Spring

As I walked down our hill this noon to mail a letter I found another bird, a robin, shot through the throat.

I've wondered why so few birds have come into the garden this winter and why they are not singing. The few yellow crowns have been so quiet, even though I know that they come to the bird feeder. The sassy jays have almost disappeared. We had so many last spring.

I've seen a teen-ager on our hill with a gun several times. I'm wondering if he and his parents are aware that San Anselmo has a city ordinance concerning shooting at moving targets. I'm wondering if a shooting gallery couldn't be considered as part of a recreation center for teen-agers, where, for a quarter they could shoot for an hour or as long as they wished.

Tiburon Volunteer Firemen Appreciated

On Dec. 23, 1971, we went through an unnerving experience of a bad fire at our residence at 2081-A Paradise Drive. We are writing this letter to try to herald, in some manner, the outstanding job that the Tiburon Volunteer Fire Department does. The only place that we could think of to write was the Independent-Journal.

These men are well trained and dedicated to their jobs as volunteers which makes them all so exceptional. They have donated their time and labors willingly and in an extraordinary way.

Please, whatever you may be able to do, give them some notoriéty and praise, with thanks.

Response Tremendous For Boy Musicians

On behalf of the Council of Music and Arts, we wish to extend to your newspaper, and the people of San Rafael, our sincere thanks for the many acts of kindness shown to the boys of the Orquestra Don Bosco, during their stay at the Santa Margarita School in Terra Linda.

The excellent stories written by Mary Leydecker gave us all the desire to do something for a group of very talented young boys, a long way from home.

And the response was tremendous. San Rafael should be proud of itself for the hospitality, warmth, generosity and love shown to the boys. If you had seen the joy and happiness on their faces, then you would have realized that it was all worthwhile.

You all deserve one of your well-known "bouquets," and with it goes our thanks, for all your help.

German Schools Offer Lesson For Americans

Your recent article (Jan. 5) "The People's Schools," by Mr. Anderson clearly illustrated the current trend in modern American public schools.

If knowledge, truth, and the search for a higher meaning in life are to be deemphasized, why have schools at all?. Especially tax-supported schools.

The dangers of using the schools for social reconstruction hjve been brought to light by our neighbors in postwar Germany. German scholars believe that the educational institution must not be used as an agency of social reform. Furthermore, they are "critical of any utopianism which regards education as a means for ending all problems and settling every issue." With an open mind (now) school instructors clearly realize that teaching cannot be expected to change human nature. It is also considered an abuse of state power to force the molding of the pupil in any way it wants.

Germans, once the victims of propaganda and warped ideology, have been shocked back to a search for truth with a clear understanding that untruth cannot be overcome simply by an appeal to the useful.

The people of Germany have gone through a dark period of history where life without the ethical restraints of religion revealed the most sinister pagan side of man's nature. Will American educators have to learn the same lesson by following the same tragic steps? Let us hope not.

Nixon-Sato Meeting Leaves Japan's Future Role In Doubt

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — What can be scored for the meeting between Japan and the United States, now ended beyond the official rhetoric, will not be known until well into the future. But, given the bitterness souring the relationship between Tokyo and Washington only two months ago, it can be judged at least a partial success.

The very fact that Prime Minister Eisaku Sato came here with a retinue of 28, including three cabinet members, was a triumph of sorts. This made Sato a member of the Summit Club, and by all accounts he was pleased and flattered by the Nixon welcome. He will retire when the Okinawa reversion treaty is final, and the meeting was, therefore, a capstone to a career of leadership in the rebirth of Japan.

NO MATTER HOW resolute the promises the President gave the prime minister, the Japanese will wait with ill-concealed anxiety to see what transpires in Peking beginning Feb. 21. They hope the President will achieve a halfway house between the normalization of diplomatic relations and the development of trade, travel and cultural exchanges.

Such a result would serve the Japanese as a useful model for their own beginning relations with Peking. It would quiet the clamor of the left parties and a faction within Sato's Liberal Democrats pushing to get on with it and let Taiwan go hang. More important, it would open the way for Japanese Industrial lists, with the backing of large government loans, to revive the flourishing prewar trade with mainland China.

Whether Peking will settle with the United States, to say nothing of Japan, for a convenient halfway house raises a very large order of doubt. The Nixon-Sato summit has helped to make clear that the President is taking one of the greatest gambles in American diplomatic history. In a death-defying act, he has put his head in the dragon's mouth. If he emerges unscathed he can take a well-deserved bow before the whole world.

WITH THE RED CHINA visit drawing nearer, and even as an advance party works on the all-important television arrangements, the Peking radio intensified its attacks: America is a wicked imperialist power, America is riddled by corruption and contradictions in the midst of a recession with the impoverished many and the affluent few, America is decadent, finished.

This fustian is discounted as meant only for the Communist powers that China woos. The conviction anchoring all the plans for the visit is that Peking, given the massive Russian threat, needs the Nixon visit at least as much as does the President for his own special reasons.

IF THE JAPANESE have their hopes, they also have their fears, and it is hardly necessary to add that those fears were not entirely allayed during the two days at San Clemente. The nightmare that has haunted them since the Peking announcement takes the following form: The President is persuaded by Chou En-Lai and Mao Tse-Tung to make a deal meaning the relatively speedy opening of diplomatic relations between Peking and Washington. Taiwan and Chiang Kai-Shek are abandoned.

In this scenario of fear and suspicion, Japan would be left adrift. The ties with Taiwan could not be abruptly severed, if only because of the sizable Japanese investment on that island. And Peking would be in a position so strong as to make bargaining all but impossible, with the only alternative a humiliating kowtow.

That this is inconceivable, as the Americans said again and again during the meeting, makes no difference. The visceral fear grows out of the shock that a great and good friend, a protector, pulled the rug out without a word of warning. Only time can erase this trauma.

ANOTHER INTANGIBLE yet nevertheless real barrier has worked against the knitting together of ties once taken for granted. That is the American failure to realize and understand Japan's foreignness — the subtlety of Japanese thinking, the ceremonial way of life of an island people who have built up formidable psychological defenses against the outside world. For all the superficial resemblance, the passion for golf and baseball, they are an utterly different people.

That is particularly true of men of the older generation — Sato and his foreign minister, Takeo Fukuda, who is likely to be his successor. This encounter between East and West will not be resolved by a football play or a golf game. It calls for the kind of hard intellectual effort that has been in short supply.

Cadillac Approach Weakens U.S. While Inflating Spending

WASHINGTON — In World War II, the Treasury Department motivated young American war bond salesmen during fund-raising drives by telling them just what so many dollars would buy. A Jeep came for $700, for example, and a Grumman Hellcat fighter for $20,000.

Today, in the dwindling stages of World War II and 2/3, the sum of $700 might buy you a screwdriver and a pair of pliers, and $20,000 might or might not buy the landing gear for a Phantom fighter.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics figures the purchasing power of the dollar has shrunk to about a third of its 1940 potential. Starting from there, a modern fighter would cost about $60,000 if it were still in the Hellcat class and the only inflationary factor were the dollar itself. Instead, the Phantom costs upwards of $3 million, or about 50 times what inflation alone accounts for.

THAT IS BECAUSE it is a Cadillac among fighter planes. Its electronics, range, weight, payload, speed and other characteristics make it a luxury item. And largely because American officers and defense officials insist on luxury items, this country and its friends no longer are supreme in the air. They are outnumbered by the Soviet Union and its friends, whose most ubiquitous combat plane, MIG-21, weighs a third as much as the Phantom, flies about a third as far, costs much less —yet does very well in action against it.

There are parallel truths about other types of military hardware —helicopters, submarines, other ships, tanks. In each field, this country has sacrificed quantity to quality — which may seem a commendable trend until it reaches the point at which we can no longer uphold our commitments.

Two solutions offer themselves. One is to buy the quantity of arms we need, no matter what the price. In fact, that is not a solution because it is not possible. Military spending already hovers near the $80 billion mark. Despite the decline in combat in Indochina, only minor cuts have been made in the past two years. And for the year ahead, the administration is expected to ask for another boost, of about $5 billion, mostly for updating strategic nuclear weapons programs. The public, represented by the dollar-watchers in the Senate, will not stand for increases even beyond that.

The other, obvious answer is to compromise between quality and quantity — to buy a whole fleet of Mavericks rather than such a small number of Cadillacs that they wind up as museum pieces.

BUT THAT IS NOT what the generals and admirals are opting for. They are holding out for Rolls Royces instead They want to replace the Phantom with fighters costing $15 million a copy or more. They want to build yet another monster nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. They are fascinated with the idea of amphibious assault ships equipped with climate-controlled gymnasiums where marines can accustom themselves in advance to the conditions they will find when they hit the beach. The list is endless.

Last week, the many citizens who are properly concerned about arms spending were alarmed even further by an announcement that the American Security Council was beginning an expensive lobbying campaign to notify the country that "the Communists are widening their lead every week." What alarmed them, though, was not the fact of the widening gap. It was that someone who wants the United States to approach world affairs from a position of strength was joining the publicity contest which the senatorial arms-cutters have dominated so far.

THE UNFORTUNATE PART is that the middle way, the most sensible approach for our national security in the long run, has no heavily financed lobby and no very noticeable congressional advocates.

The American Security Council campaign is spearheaded by retired military men who epitomize the Cadillac approach to arms procurement. The congressional arms-cutters are typified by Sen. J. William Fulbright, who is just out with a new explanation of why the Communist nations present us with no threat at all.

But there are only a lonely few of those with eyes to perceive that threat, and at the same time to see that it will be met best by bringing weapons cost under control so that we can afford to buy a credible amount of national defense.

Flood-Prone Ross May Stymie Relief For Residents Downstream

Whether the concrete portion of Corte Madera Creek should be extended through Ross promises to provoke considerable debate in the town before the upcoming municipal election.

But the fate of that final 2,900 feet of concrete channel must be of considerable interest downstream from Ross as well. Without it, the flood control project is "virtually ineffective," according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

The concreting project is now complete from near the College of Marin to a point about 600 feet downstream from the Lagunitas Road bridge in Ross.

At the bridge, Murphy said, the present channel can carry only 3,000 cubic feet of water each second. Any more water and there is a flood.

Eight times since 1951, the water has bubbled over the banks there and flooded all the way down to College Park in Larkspur, Murphy said.

ALL THAT CONCRETE below is useless if flooding starts at the bridge, he added, because an old railroad embankment keeps water from re-entering the creek.

Therefore, the flood waters flow down Poplar and Kent avenues to the College of Marin, then flood College Park before reentering the creek.

The Army Corps of Engineers, which controls construction, has maintained all along that the project must be completed up to the San Anselmo city line to be effective, but a group of Ross residents, Save Our Creek, is fighting the completion.

Peter B. Valentine, whose back yard touches the creek, has filed suit in Marin Superior Court asking for a referendum in the town to decide whether the project should run past his house.

A legal question to be decided is does Ross have the right to veto the project at this late date.

THE ROSS-SAN ANSELMO border is a natural cutoff, according to Murphy. At that point a second creek and a hill combine to funnel all waters from upstream into Corte Madera Creek, which will not flood if it is concrete-lined and straightened, Murphy said.

So if the court decision favors the project, some flooding will be ended, but Ross Common and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard will continue to flood because of inadequate drainage, Murphy said.

Ross claims it agreed to join the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone on the condition the district correct the town's local flooding problems also. The zone has offered about $60,000 — originally thought to be the bulk of the expense — but estimates now run above $350,000. The zone and its parent agency, the Marin County Board of Supervisors, have refused to pay that much.

All of which leaves Ross waiting for the next drenching and a benefactor with about $300,000. Without the money, the town faces the wet prospect of more floods whether the creek gets a concrete backbone or not.

Committees Working On School Cuts

Six citizen committees of the San Anselmo School District have begun charting a course to program cuts next school year.

Supt. W. Kenneth Lowry said the committees, which have a combined membership of about 115, were told what is expected of them and given a schedule by district trustees Tuesday night.

The committees are to study district programs this month, review alternates in February and make preliminary recommendations March 7, Lowry said.

The committees were set up to get community involvement in deciding how to balance the budget next year. Lowry said the district expects a deficit of $100,000 to $140,000 for 1972-73 if all present programs are continued.

This year's budget is $1.96 million.

Lowry said the committees also are expected to involve more citizens in decisions and coordinate district goals with those being set at Sir Francis Drake High School.

That Tilt Toward Pakistan: Blame It On Camel Driver

WISHINGTON — The revelations concerning the United States' role in the India-Pakistan war, as told by columnist Jack Anderson, explained everything except why the Americans chose to support Pakistan instead of India.

We know from the Anderson papers that the President was furious because he felt he wasn't getting enough support from the State Department on "tilting" toward Pakistan. And we also know that Henry Kissinger said he was catching hell from the President because we weren't strong enough in expressing our feelings of antagonism toward the Indians. But neither the Anderson papers nor anything the administration has said gives us a clue as to why the President "tilted" the way he did.

Through sources I cannot reveal at this time, I can disclose how the United States made its fatal choice to go with the military dictator Yahya Khan of Pakistan who, as with most leaders the United States supports, is now under house arrest.

A FEW DAYS before hostilities broke out between India and Pakistan, the President's National Security Council met at the White House. Here are the minutes of that meeting:

1—The CIA reported that they expected war to break out at any time in East Bengal between India and Pakistan.

2—The President asked the council members which country they thought the United States should support.

3—The Joint Chiefs of Staff said they could go either way. If the President wished to support India they would send the United States fleet to Pakistan. If, on the other hand, the President wanted to support Pakistan they would send the fleet to India. In any case, they would announce they were doing it to protect American lives.

4—The United States Information Agency said it was prepared to charge either Pakistan or India with aggression as soon as it got the word as to which way the President wanted to tilt.

5—The President said he was prepared to tilt, but since neither country had football teams he could not get emotionally involved.

6—Henry Kissinger said that since the Chinese were supporting Pakistan and the Russians were supporting India, he thought it would be a nice gesture before the President's Peking visit to come out for Pakistan.

7—The State Department objected on the grounds that India was a democracy and if the President tilted toward Pakistan, the United States could lose all its influence in Asia.

8—THE PRESIDENT ASKED if there were any legal precedents for supporting either one of the countries.

9- Dr. Kissinger said there were: Lyndon Johnson, when he was vice president of the United States, had given his word to a camel driver in Karachi that if ever India and Pakistan got into a fight, the United States would back Pakistan.

10—The State Department objected to this interpretation of former President Johnson's commitment. They said all Mr. Johnson had done was to give the camel driver a pickup truck.

11—Dr. Kissinger said a pickup truck was as good as a commitment. Since it was made in the previous administration, President Nixon had no choice but to honor it because the United States' credibility was at stake.

12—The President agreed and started tilting toward Pakistan. As a matter of fact he tilted so much, he fell off his chair.

30 YEARS SERVICE

A Look At Social Welfare

Abuse Of Children Alarming

By PAT BALMES

"Crisis after crisis is what protective services work is. You may have an abused child in the hospital. Why was he burned? You must protect his brothers and sisters from a parent under pressure," said Mrs. Philip Anderson of San Rafael, a social welfare worker for more than 30 years.

Mary Anderson might have coped with this crisis by sending in a homemaker to relieve pressure and gather data on the best plan for the children. Removing them from their home would have been the last resort, she said.

During the last five years until her recent retirement, Mary Anderson worked with the Child Welfare Services division of San Francisco Department of Social Services and as University of California field work supervisor directing social welfare graduate students. They worked in the ghetto at Turk and Fillmore streets in San Francisco in 1969 for Protective Services.

AT HER HOME in San Rafael, where she enjoys hobbies such as making flowers from tin, Mrs. Anderson discussed photographs in the files at San Francisco General Hospital showing beaten, burned and scalded children.

Child abusers are frequently adults who were beaten as children and know abuse as the only way to cope with cpildren.

Referrals are rare; ghetto people don't want to "squeal" on their own. Doctors are reluctant. Referrals come mostly from relatives, she said.

Sometimes when a worker goes to an abused child's home the father is the only English-speaking family member, so the mother's side of the story is never heard.

"Child welfare needs Chinese and Spanish-speaking workers and black workers accustomed to violence," she said, adding that her two Spanish-speaking students were in great demand. Constant threats, illegal activities, a bombing in the nearby Black Panther headquarters and the stabbing of a co-worker convinced her that the ghetto was no place for a white middle-class woman.

Her students were tenacious in seeking an agency to assume responsibility for a needy child who, if not properly categorized, might "fall into the cracks" between agencies and fail to receive support.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES are the area trained social workers will always be needed. Many welfare graduates now gravitate toward community organization specialty (organizing groups toward social change), but few such jobs are supported now because of "terrific cutbacks" in salaries this year. New masters can hardly find work, she said, although there is a shortage of trained personnel and a lack of minority personnel.

"I began in welfare when it was just getting started in 1936, after enactment of the Social Security Act. Then it was thought to be a stop-gap relief organization and everybody would eventually get off aid," Mrs. Anderson recalled.

Now the public understands that large groups are going to have to be maintained. Welfare is a way of life for the aged, blind, totally disabled and dependent children.

Many taxpayers expect the welfare department to solve the problem of poverty and get people off the rolls. This constant criticizism is hard for social workers to work under, she said.

"The taxpayers agree that those groups should receive aid, but the chiselers, lazy, greedy, promiscuous, immoral or those willfully lacking education should not," said Mrs. Anderson. "But there are few people on the rolls who should not be given aid. Only a very small percentage are adults who can be trained."

THE PUBLIC must decide what its expectations of welfare are — Does it just want to maintain families or does it want to improve their level of living by services like household management, health care, training and emkployment and substitute child care?

Mary was graduated from college and began her career in 1936 in Colorado, where, she recalled, ruggedly individualistic miners were quick to demand their rightful share of aid. She was given a social welfare scholarship to Tulane University and received the masters degree in 1942. She then did welfare work in New Orleans, meeting the poor who she recalled were shy about asking for aid.

A typical aid recipient has a low self-image. He feels like a second-class citizen. He is suspicous of welfare workers. His isolation and anger show in hostility or apathy, Mrs. Anderson said.

She saw effects of unemployment during her long career. It lowers a person's status at home and results in poor nutrition, damaging children's ability to learn, she said.

The Aid to Families with Dependent Children food allowance is enough for an adequate diet if the recipient has a refrigerator, pots and pans and can buy in quantity and shop for sales, she said.

Welfare can help clients get child care away from home, training and employment and medical aid.

"They (some welfare recipients) are fearful of doctors. It's hard to get them to go," she said.

THE WELFARE area has been humanized in recent years, according to Mrs. Anderson. The departments have discontinued publishing recipients' names, closed poor farms and large custodial institutions and have inaugurated work training and employment programs. Money payments have been substituted for food orders and vouchers.

Leaders of welfare rights organizations have helped welfare recipients improve their self-image. Their needs are being met by the community organizers who have established the groups for clients with common problems.

"Lonely single mothers, unemployed men and alcoholics no longer need to feel their situations resulted from a personal flaw. Group members encourage one another," said Mrs. Anderson. "A group for prisoners' families has recently been established. It is sad that there is no allowance for transportation so San Francisco children can visit their fathers in San Quentin."

Other humanizing innovations are protective services for children and adults and acceptence of single adopting parents for hard-to-place children, she said.

"There remains one group of children to lift out of poverty," Mrs. Anderson said. "Foster children receive about $100 a month compared to $900 some private institutions charge for maintaining a child."

Today's welfare worker wants to reach out to help individuals but is limited by staff shortages and too many regulations, according to the retired woman.

THE WELFARE department buys services from experts instead of having its workers try to learn a field and set it up. Twenty contracts have been made by the San Francisco Welfare Department to purchase authorized agencies' services, such as child care, employment training and homemakers service for 1,000 totally disabled persons in San Francisco.

It appears to Mrs. Anderson that the trend of the future will be toward trained social workers available for emergency and children's work, but the vast paper work will be handled by federal government employees. The state will be coordinator and contractor of services with private agencies. The county will respond to differing needs of its people, like deciding on special services for a farming community.

Speaking of the new outreach program, Mary Anderson said, "The welfare worker goes out into the community to make known what services are available and to encourage needy who hesitate feeling it is degrading to apply for aid. It is right rather than a privilege."

SOLDERING TIN roses to mount on velvet is a hobby enjoyed by Mrs. Philip Anderson of San Rafael, who retired recently after 30 years in welfare work. As a field work supervisor for University of California social welfare graduates she was involved with child abuse cases in a San Francisco ghetto.

Couple To Be Wed In Modesto

The engagement of Marcia Elaine Shelton to Steven Charles McPherson of San Anselmo has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Verlie O. Shelton of Modesto.

Marcia is a graduate of Davis High School in Modesto and is attending Modesto Junior College as a child development major.

Steven is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith C. McPherson. A graduate of Downey High School in Modesto and Modesto Junior College, he also attended the University of California and is now a junior at the University of Nevada.

The pair plans to be married July 29 at Davis Park Church of Christ in Modesto.

Joanne L. Matzen Is Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Matzen of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daugher Joanne Louise Matzen to John James Leddy of Bay City, Mich.

Joanne is the sister of Ronald Matzen of San Francisco and Donna Matzen of San Rafael. Mrs. Refugio Corvino of San Francisco is her grandmother.

Now employed in the dental office of Dr. Arnold Pieri in Corte Madera, Joanne is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and the Bay City College dental assisting program in San Francisco.

John, whose parents are deceased, is the grandson of Mrs. Nellie Gilbert of Saginaw, Mich., and the brother of Ron Leddy, stationed in Turkey with the U.S. Army. He is a graduate of T.L. Handy High School in Bay City and is in the security police at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The couple plans a spring wedding in Marin.

She's Just 'Birdie' To Everybody

DENVER — Her name is Catherine Hurlbutt but around town she's known as "Birdie" —and for good reason.

Miss Hurlbutt, a stenographer and conference reporter at the Bureau of Reclamation for 35 years, shares her home with 12 chattering birds, one of which is Edgar, a raven, who lives in her bedroom.

And that's not all. In the backyard she has a "bird clinic" for injured and sick birds referred to her. Her personal collection includes a crow, three magpies, two mynahs, two parakeets, one of which can rattle off the names of every state and its state bird, two starlings and two finches. They all talk except the finches.

At 58, Birdie is looking forward to retirement so she can spend all her time with her birds.

Over half the meals consumed in the U.S. today are prepared outside the home, and fully one-third are consumed outside the home.

NEW BRIDAL LOOKS

A new sphere of elegance is given the non-traditional wedding dress (left) by William Cahill Ltd. in this combination for spring of wool jersey and 16th Century wallpaper printed wool challis. White organza is used by designer Ron LoVece for the spring gown (right) in its floor length circular skirt. Satin bands the hemline, the highrise waist and the edge of the matching hood. Feathered flowers enhance the tiny cap sleeves and frame the face. It was unveiled in the January showings of the New York Couture Business Council.

Top Designer Corbin's Eye Focuses On The Unclassical

NEW YORK (UPI) —Howard Corbin began his climb to fame and fortune by inventing natural shoulder trousers after World War II. Now he is concentrating on updated classics in men's wear—and turning out such unclassical garments as Argyle knitted slacks.

He had served in the war as a bombardier-navigator on B25s, stationed in Foggia, Italy, and didn't like what he saw when he came home —big floppx pants with pleats. So his family pants manufacturing company began turning out trim uniform-type pants with no pleats.

This was a time when the Ivy League look was big on the college campuses, the natural shoulder jackets with three buttons. So Corbin, Ltd. called their pants natural shoulder trousers "and did quite a nice little business since everyone wanted to dress like an Ivy Leaguer."

CORBIN, 47, and his brother, Leo, started the trousers business in 1946 as an outgrowth of their father's business. Nathan Corbin, the father, was a Brooklyn pants contractor who made them for other companies and did not sell them direct to stores.

Howard was attending the Columbia University School of Business in the morning and selling in the afternoon, a life of such rigor that his 90-year-old father muttered that perhaps it might have been better if he had stayed in the Air Force.

"The first order I ever took was right in New York but I was so mortified I almost never completed it," Corbin said. "I was so excited I left both copies of the order in the store. I walked around the block twice to get up enough courage to go in and ask for it.

"After three years I suddenly realized people had no reason for buying. We were selling the same merchandise as everybody else —big, baggy pants with pleats. So we took only the pants and built up a very respectable business, name and company."

Corbin Ltd., moved to huntington, W.Va., in 1957 because of a labor shortage in New York and opened a factory that employed 40 persons. In January, 1968, Corbin said, he "realized a lifetime ambition and went into the clothing business — suits and sports coats. The factory now employes 800."

THE EMPHASIS in the trousers business was on unusual fabrics, and the same thing holds for the clothing business. Which is how the clothing business got started —buyers kept asking for coats to go with the unusual trousers.

Coffee is the major crop in Haiti.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

A Black Girl Explains What 'Black Is Beautiful' Is About

DEAR RAP:

This is in answer to "Cynic" who is getting turned off by racism. You answered him well, but I'd like to add a few things.

What the Cynic terms "an assertion of racial superiority" is not what racial pride is all about. "Black is beautiful" does not mean black is more beautiful, but black is as beautiful as white.

Every oppressed people must go through this state and realize who they are. This is only a step toward self-respect. Of course some overdo it, but don't a few do that in every race?

It is good the Cynic understands the anger that minority groups have towards whites. But something else must also be understood. The Cynic is not directly responsible for the terrible things the Caucasian race has done. But if he does not try to change the situation in his lifetime, he is guilty of being passive.

After World War II, people were tried and found guilty for not speaking out against the Nazis. The Cynic should not feel guilty, but he should try to do something to change things as they are now.

Since he is white, the best place to start is the white community. Many whites are not even as educated about the Third World as he is.

The fight goes beyond color. We all have to fight this thing: red, black, white, brown, yellow. Each person has to decide for himself who the enemy is, and how to change him. — MELINDA KAY, A BLACK GIRL

DEAR MELINDA:

Thanks for your good letter. Things will change. You and Sue will see, even if my generation stays around only for the first two acts. — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Why is it that when a guy takes a girl out, he thinks it's his duty to go park and make out?

None of the guys around here even plan their dates. Do you think they would take a girl to a show, horseback riding, to a carnival or game, to the beach, to dinner, skating, bowling, or to a dance? Even a good walk to a museum, or an invitation to help him wash his car would be appreciated.

There are lots of things that don't cost much money, and they're a lot more fun than sitting in a car for two or three hours glued to each other!

What can be done to get the point over to boys? — SICK AND TIRED OF IT

DEAR SATOI:

Polish up your "no parking" button and let the guys know the difference between a cheap date and a date that cheapens. So long as you accept "submarine hunts" you'll get nothing better. — HELEN

DEAR TIRED

A friend of mine has the ultimate reply to those guys who figure every girl should park. She says, "It's my football, my field, and my rules." You'd be surprised how many decide to play the game her way. — SUE

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combined answer.

Classes To Start Soon By YMCA

Classes sponsored by the Marin YMCA branch will begin next week.

Exercise classes for boys are Mighty Mites for 6 to 8-year-olds, which will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4 p.m. at the YMCA and Santa Venetia Middle School; and Burly Bruisers for 9 to 11-year-glds on Mondays and Wednesdays at the YMCA. The class for the younger boys will focus on motor skills and hand to eye coordination through games and rhythms, while the older group concentrates on understanding, skills and team participation.

Fitness Finders, to be held Wednesdays at 7 p.m. at the Terra Linda Recreation Center, is for persons 9 years and older and will combine informal lectures, discussion and exercise.

Three beginning gymnastics classes are planned as an introduction to tumbling and free exercise. Classes for 4 to 6-year-old boys and girls will be held Tuesdays at 4:45 p.m. at San Domenico School for Girls, and 8 to 18-year-old girls' classes will meet Mondays at 6 p.m. at Tamalpais and Terra Linda High Schools and Wednesdays at 6 p.m. at Terra Linda High School.

Intermediate classes, which will focus on AAU and Olympic compulsory exercises, meet Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. at Terra Linda and Thursdays at 6 p.m. at Tamalpais High School.

Other YMCA activities beginning next week are Pre-school Playmates, an introduction to nursery school and group experience, for 2½ to 4-year-old boys and girls Tuesdays and Fridays at 9:30 a.m. at the YMCA; and Saturday Fun Camp, a series of one-day field trips and overnights for 5 to 11-year-old boys and girls.

Members and non-members may enroll in classes, and registration forms are available from the YMCA.

Soaring Prices Are Felt By The Consumer In France

PARIS (UPI) —"One could lose power in France over the price of a subway ticket"—L'Express magazine.

Collette Dury, 21, rummaged in her red market basket for 13.80 francs (about $2.55) to hand to the butcher on Ordener Street for some veal stew meat for lunch.

"Life is every expensive in Paris," said Mrs. Dury, echoing the complaints of her sisters in the United States and other countries where the cost of living is soaring. Mrs. Dury and her daughter Crystal, three, were making the rounds of the food shops, seeking to stretch her food allowance.

"It's the government economists who are responsible," she said. "We voted for them, but in the next election we will not. We are fed up with their price policy."

GOVERNMENT ECONOMISTS dispute whether the French really suffer from high prices, claiming salary boosts have kept buying power ahead of rising prices. They say the French think they spend more because they cannot resist new products flooding the rapidly modernizing country.

The Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) says prices rose 5.3 per cent in France in 1970, more than in Germany, the same as in Italy, but less than in Switzerland, the United States, The Netherlands, Britain and Japan.

But in recent months, Mrs. Dury and the rest of the French have been hit with even more price boosts, on subway tickets (protest demonstrations on this increase are planned), hospitals, laundries, dry cleaners, postage, gasoline and food. Next came increases in telephone and gas rates.

Mrs. Dury says: "I don't care what the figures say, our cost of living has gone up 10 per cent in a year."

One question often asked by foreigners in France (also appalled at the high prices) is: How does the average French family manage?

MRS. DURY'S husband, Jean Pierre, 24, a handsome motorcycle messenger who works at the Paris race track, makes an average of 1,800 francs a month (about $360—figures roughly about five francs to the U.S. dollar for all conversions.

Mrs. Dury, a former seamstress in the Paris Opera costume department, does not work because the couple has two small children. The younger is 10 months old.

While she shopped recently in her neighborhood in the north of Paris, Mrs. Dury estimated she spends 170 francs per month for laundry, toothpaste, stockings, cleanings and similar necessities.

"The self-service laundry in this neighborhood cost three francs a machine last spring," she said. "Now it's five francs."

The Durys pay 200 francs a month for a one-room apartment with a small kitchen but no bath. They use the building's toilet on the ground floor and patronize public baths.

AS IS THE national habit in a nation with the reputation for the greatest cooking in the Western world, the Durys' largest expense goes for food.

The Dury's rent a television set for 70 francs a month, their main entertainment. The rest of the money goes for gasoline for the motorcycle, clothing, utility bills and savings.

On the shopping trip, daughter Crystal, wore a pantsuit that cost 36 francs with a sweater priced at 27 francs.

"Vacations? Oh, we can't afford these," said the pretty brunette housewife. "Crystal gets two months with her godparents in the country — and this month, the train ticket went up 20 per cent to 25 francs."

The National Consumers Institute says it has received about 8,000 letters in three months with messages such as, "The wine I drink went up five per cent in a month, olive oil 10 per cent, cheese from nine to 12 francs, a suit I bought last year at 260 francs now sells at 380."

Saving Money On Wardrobes

Jane Speece, of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Service, offers these shopping tips: Look at the construction of the garment. While a poorly made one can be altered or reinforced at home, you might not save enough to make it worth the time needed to fix it. Store charges on alterations can increase prices to the point that the garment no longer is a bargain. Always compare sale prices with regular prices to determine that you're really getting a good buy.

Amniocentesis: New Technique

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Diagnosing disease and determining sex before birth are now possible with a dramatic new technique called "amniocentesis." It is a painless, almost foolproof method of performing laboratory tests on the amniotic, water-like fluid that surrounds the fetus. A team of scientists at the University of Michigan Medical Center here is one of seven in the nation studying the subject with the help of funds from the National Institutes of Health.

NUPTIALS IN PIEDMONT — Mrs. Lynn Ashdown and Don Joe Kelley, both of Mill Valley, were married at Piedmont Community Church and will live in Mill Valley following a skiing trip to Colorado. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Teasdel of Piedmont and her husband is the son of Mrs. Mary Kelley of Buffalo, Wyo., and Charles Kelley of Gillette, Wyo., who served as best man.

A safe ladder includes nonslip treads on the steps and ladder feet wide enough so they will not sink into soft ground.

Women On Faculty

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Michigan State University hopes to have women occupying 14.6 per cent of its faculty positions in the tenure system by the end of the 1973-74 academic year, if hiring goals are fully met. There currently are 250 women—or 11.4 per cent—in the tenure system.

Alumnae Set Reunion Jan. 23

The event will begin with mass at 10 a.m. in the college chapel, followed by the breakfast in the Skyroom and a talk by Richard King, attorney, professional lecturer, actor and singer.

ART REVIEW

Caliber Of Painting On The College Level Being Elevated

By LAURA DEVENDORF

In a recent discussion, Alton Raible, art instructor at the College of Marin, pointed out that today's art student greatly admires technical proficiency and craftsmanship and that he is willing to accept the discipline and hard work necessary to achieve high levels of both.

This attitude is certainly evident —especially in the painting category —in the college's student exhibition, which continues through Jan. 28 in the college gallery.

Only a few years ago, the paintings were of such amateurish quality that it was hard to find enough to include in the show. Now, there are many and whether the painting is a huge realistic car fender, a traditional street scene or an amorphous explosion of entrails, bone and color, it is well done, and freer because of the mastery of technical problems.

The territory covered is wide. There is William Thomas's painting of enormous, understated pacing nudes and his drawing of grotesque faces in "Transition." There are several hard-edge, nonobjective things and others, such as a farm family and horse, drawn with hairline meticulousness.

And a few are in styles noticeably resembling a faculty member's work. But at least, if emulation is part of growth, the style idol is a challenging one.

Sculpture, always the strong area at the college, is no let down. It is even more varied than usual. There is much work in wood, some laminated, carved or painted and looking like anything from a giant skate key to a Chinese puzzle. Or the wood is rough with the emphasis on space and motion.

such as in a fanning spine of chocks or another composed of tumbling open squares.

Metal comes in many forms, including Mary Bowles's bronze macrame mounted on a polished steel plaque. There is soft sculpture, where weaving has assumed so much dimension and textural interest that it ceases to fit neatly in the latter category. And there is the unexpected in Charles A. Williams's sculpted sod blocks, complete with a full blown mat of grass on top.

Jewelry and ceramics have a general elegance, with the former being mostly silver and simple and the latter, including pieces as diverse as a carved box and a rough low pot punctured and glazed a soft blue on top.

In photography, undoubtedly the most interesting work is the sequence of snapshots cornermounted in the middle of blurred enlargements of the same passing man — Laurence Ramlan appropriately titles it, "If you really need a title go back to the sequence and start again."

It should be noted that at the college, the word student does not equate with novice. Some of the most polished work belongs to artists who have been working successfully and independently for some time.

But experienced or not, the student work overall is at a most enjoyable level and reflects their earnestness, regardless of age or former training.

Pianist Palmer To Give Concert

Palmer, pupil of Gordon Pomfrey of Mill Valley, will play Sonata in G Major, Haydn; Suite Bergamasque, Debussy; Episodes, Opus 12, Prokofieff, and Barcarolle, Opus 60, Chopin.

Novato Alarm Boxes Bought

Novato Fire Protection District directors last night authorized purchase of 16 radio-equipped alarm boxes at a cost of $67,050 from Herman Oliver Inc. of Palo Alto, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

The chief said eight of the boxes will be installed in connection with undergrounding on Grant Avenue. The remainder of the boxes will be located in other areas of the city.

The board adjourned until 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at fire headquarters for the third in a series of special sessions with firemen on salary and fringe benefit requests.

Pond Idea For Sewage Treatment

A committee, selected to study possible solutions to Bolinas's sewage problems, recommended last night treatment of community wastes in a series of ponds which would turn the sewage into drinkable water, clerk Helen McKay reported.

The suggestion was made to the Bolinas Community Public Utility District, which authorized the committee to hire a consultant to study the pond proposal and recommend how it could be implemented, Mrs. McKay said.

Director Gregory Hewlett, who heads the board-appointed committee, said the five ponds would be located either on county land near the Bolinas Lagoon or on property across from the Christian Science Church on Bolinas-Olema Road.

Sewage would settle in the first pond and be aerated and treated with algae in the second. The algae would settle out in the third pond and the remaining two would be holding ponds, she said.

Cost of the system is estimated at $135,000-200,000.

The cmmmunity now is under orders from the Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board to cease and desist its dumping of raw sewage from about 180 homes and businesses in downtown Bolinas into the lagoon.

A proposal for an $8.1 million treatment system in Bolinas and Stinson Beach has been abandoned by the utility district board as too expensive and ecologically unsound.

The committee reported last night it had studied three proposals, including a packaged plant on a site near the district's rent outfall into the lagoon (estimated to cost $95,000-125,000) and a packaged plant with an aerated lagoon and holding pond ($159,000-$215,000).

Before making its choice, the committee said it had explored the environmental and economic impact of the projects considered, as well as whether the effluent produced by each would meet requirements set by water quality officials.

The ponds proposed would be earth dykes lined with plastic or concrete, Mrs. McKay said.

In other business, the utility district board postponed until its Jan. 22 meeting consideration of a change in district water rates.

Top Soviet Cellist Sets Concert

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

Mstislav Rostropovich, considered one of the greatest living cellists, will make a return engagement to San Francisco next Thursday night at the San Francisco Opera House.

For his concert the Soviet cellist has selected works by Bach, Mozart, Richard Strauss, Beethoven and Prokofieff.

Also on the musical front, pianist Grant Johannesen will return to Zellerbach Auditorium on the University of California campus at Berkeley for a Sunday night concert. His concert will include "Masques" and "L'Isle Joyeuse" by Debussy and Schubert's Sonata in B-flat Major.

Also in the East Bay the Oakland Symphony Orchestra will present its 1971 Young Artist Award winner, James Fields, in Rachmaninoff's "Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini." The program, to be given in Oakland on Tuesday and Thursday nights and at Zellerbach on Wednesday, will also include "Symphonie Fantastique" by Berlioz and the West Coast premiere of Primous Fountain's "Manifestation."

DRAMA

The Committee Revue, the Bay Area's oldest on-going theatrical institution, will unveil its all new collection of skits, sketches and improvisations Wednesday. The group performs at 662 Broadway in San Francisco.

ART

The desolate plight of thousands of Japanese Americans, who were forced to give up their homes and businesses to live in internment camps during World War II, is depicted in dual exhibits now at the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco and at the University Art Museum in Berkeley. The shows close Feb. 20 and 13, respectively.

Sponsored by the California Historical Society, the exhibits include 65 photographic reproductions of pictures taken during 1942-45 by such eminent photographers as Ansel Adams, Russell Lee and Dorothea Lange.

Grant, Ex-Wife Sign A Truce

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Cary Grant and ex-wife Dyan Cannon have achieved a truce in a dispute over custody and financial support of their 5-year-old daughter Jennifer.

Grant, 67, had complained that Miss Cannon, 34, intended to take their daughter out of California in violation of a court order.

The actor also asked superior court to relieve him of $1,500 a month support payments while he has the child in his custody.

Attorney Harry M. Fain told Judge William P. Hogoboom Wednesday Grant is now convinced Miss Cannon plans to remain in this area with the child. The attorney said the matter of support can be settled out of court, the pair agreed.

The acting pair was divorced in 1968.

Artists Display Ring

Mill Valley artists Bernard and Phoebe Healey, are showing paintings during January at the Ross Valley Clinic at 1350 Eliseo Drive, Greenbrae.

Ex-Convict Critical Of Warden's Reform Policy

An ex-convict charged today that San Quentin Warden Louis A. Nelson is not doing enough to support prison reform, and urged a Marvelous Marin Breakfast Club audience to involve itself in the task.

Rick Hyland, a former Marin County resident who is now a correctional services consultant after serving a sentence for armed robbery, urged support of a consultant's report issued in October that called for closing San Quentin and Folsom prisons and the substitution of small, community-oriented prisons.

"Marin sends an aveage of 25 persons a year to prison," Hyland said. "Keep them in this community — don't send them somewhere else to teach them how to get along with people." Because the convicts went to prison, "you blew it," Hyland charged. "There's something in Marin County" lacking, he said.

Nelson, a member of the breakfast club, was absent today. Hyland charged the warden had made state workers in the work-furlough program "not welcome at San Quentin."

Two breakfast club members, Stanley Clawson and Gene Young, objected they had personal experience with work furlough cases that failed — resulting in Young's case, in heavy embezzlement from his firm.

"Keep trying," Hyland urged. "You don't have to offer him a job so he can steal your money — but turn your back on the system and he'll come out with a gun and steal your money."

"I'm not trying to make this adversary," Hyland stressed. "But what you have said backs up what I've said, that the Department of Corrections program is insufficient. I don't have the answers, but I'm here" to ask the community to "roll up your sleeves, go into Quentin" and find out what can be done.

He cited as a possible answer the program of subsidized study at San Francisco State College for 80 ex-convicts. He reported only two ex-inmates had failed in the program and said the normal recidivism rate in the state's routine parole programs was much higher. He urged the audience to work with the prison task force newly created by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to seek solutions.

Hyland, a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and Amherst College, was imprisoned from 1964 through 1967. His father was an All-American football player at Stanford and a former state senator from Santa Barbara.

Wearing a conservative suit and horn-rimmed glasses, the young speaker professed sympathy with the "prison revolutionary." He claimed Warden Nelson "has a great fear of the public light" and had refused to send representatives to speak on panels with the Committee For Prisoner Humanity and Justice to which Hyland belongs.

When Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court asked what should be done "about the criminally dangerous person at San Quentin?" Hyland argued, "You cannot do worse than the department of correction." He cited a letter discussing proposed "corrective" brain surgery on violent criminals, and declared "this letter was not written in the Reichstag" but by a Department of Corrections official in 1971.

Opening Of Park Path Is Wanted

The path through Sausalito's Vina Del Mar Park should be opened for the convenience of persons who come downtown, and particularly for ferry passengers, the city's community appearances advisory board agreed last night.

The park — and the path — have been closed since 1969.

Building inspector William L. Hynes said the recommendation will be made to the city council, which referred the matter to the advisory board after the city public works director Norman Wohlschlaeger recommended the opening.

The park itself is to remain closed, even if the council votes to open the path.

Hynes said the appearances board also approved landscaping plans for the Boat House restaurant and Edgewater Yacht Sales, Bridgeway and Turney Street.

New Bar Association Head To Be Installed

Robert W. Corlett of San Rafael will be installed as president of the Marin County Bar Association at a dinner-dance at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Meadow Club in Fairfax.

Other officers to be installed are Leonard Shaw of San Rafael, vice-president; John A. Trumbull of Novato, treasurer, and Herbert G. Hawkins of San Rafael, secretary.

Not Hungary, But Hungry!

ITHACA, N.Y. — Mrs. John Perry of Bethesda, Md., sent her son a box of homemade cookies and, with a touch of levity, wrote on the package: "Do not shake — my son is hungry!"

Three months later, young Perry, a student at Cornell, got the package, its contents well aged and decidedly shaken. The parcel had been opened and resealed several times and on it was a customs stamp showing that during its journey the package had been sent to and returned from the People's Republic of Hungary.

EMPLOYEES GET REVENGE

Laurence S. Braude, leader of prostitutes and beggars in John Gay's "Beggar'f Opera," winces as two of his prostitutes (Julie Stafford, left, and Lorraine Helms) shackle him. The production, by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, will open at 8:30 p.m. Friday at 267 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley, and continue on Fridays and Saturdays through Feb. 18, except Feb. 4. Friday's opening will include dinner and music after the opera.

Missing Couple Finally Found

LAVONIA, Ga. (UPI)—The bodies of a missing army officer and his young wife, a former "Miss Delaware," were found late Tuesday in a lake which marks the Georgia-South Carolina boundary. Their car had plunged into the lake.

Lt. Thomas Kendall Phillips, 24, was found floating about a mile from the bridge where the accident happened and his wife, Susan, 22, was inside the vehicle.

Governor's Outlay For Prison System

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday asked the Legislature to approve spending $127.8 million for the state prison system next fiscal year and to abolish housing for 1,538 convicts.

The reductions in prisoner populations were proposed for San Quentin and the California Conservation Center near Susanville, a minimum security camp in the northern Sierra.

The governor also announced he will seek an immediate $2 million augmentation to the current budget to help pay 316 guards and 88 phychiatric employes recently hired on a crash basis to restore peace and order to the troubled penitentiaries.

Overall, Reagan called for increasing spending of the state Department of Corrections by $2.40 million over this year's budget.

The further reduction in prison populations contemplated in his proposed 1972-73 budget was directly linked to Reagan's announcement last week that he is starting the gradual closure of violence-plagued San Quentin.

San Quentin has a capacity of 2,600 prisoners but currently houses only about 2,200. The governor proposes reducing this to 1,500 next year. The Susanville camp has room for 1,200 inmates currently and he wants it cut down to 600, the department said.

Reagan said the downward trend in prison population which started last year is expected to continue through next year when the average population should be 21,095. This compares with 25,058 last year.

A spokesman for the Department of Corrections said the reductions would occur through normal prison "attrition," fewer admissions to San Quentin and Susanville and by transfers.

The governor asked the Legislature to retain the additional employes on the payroll, which the administration hired unilaterally with federal public service funds intended to ease unemployment.

The governor's office said he will ask the Legislature next week to enact on an urgency basis a $2 million bill so the new guards and other workers will be paid with state instead of federal funds.

Children's Art Will Be Discussed

"Art With Children" will be discussed at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at a meeting of the Lagunitas Parent-Teacher Association by Joan Young, a teacher at the Phoebe Hurst Preschool Learning Center of San Francisco.

The meeting will be held in the multipurpose room of Lagunitas School, according to Patricia White, publicity chairman.

The program also will feature an art exhibit by Lagunitas and San Geronimo schools children and artists in the valley, she said.

No Settlement In Sewer Dispute

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District board has decided it is not ready to settle a lawsuit filed by developers seeking priority in securing sewer connection permits.

The board, after a two-and-one-half-hour closed session Tuesday, voted to continue litigation in the case, which is being tried before Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court, according to board secretary Eber D. Russell.

Proceedings in the case have been postponed to Monday while both parties explored the possibility of a settlement, which now has been rejected by the sanitary district board.

The suit asks that the limited number of sewer connection permits available in the district be granted to the developers, Sea Port Development Co., Martell J. and Raymond Kaliski and Vladimir J. Turski.

The permits are sought for a 160-unit addition to the Harbor Point Development and for the 334-apartment Sea Port development overlooking Highway 101.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board last June limited the number of permits the district could issue and said new hookups would be allowed only to the extent the district cleaned up its sewage discharge.

In a related action, a San Francisco Superior Court judge Tuesday removed from his court calendar a similar suit involving the Kaliskis and Turski and the Richardson Bay District.

Judge Ira A. Brown Jr. said he was delaying action on the suit until the Marin case is settled at the request of both sides. The outcome of the Marin case will have a bearing on the San Francisco suit.

Kidnap, Assault Plea Innocent

Judge Alexander J. McMahon refused McCrea's request for release on his own recognizance, but reduced bail from $5,000 to $2,000. A preliminary hearing was set for tomorrow.

McCrea was arrested Monday after a 16-year-old Petaluma girl said she was forced into his car at knifepoint. She said she escaped by jumping out of the car as it slowed to turn a corner.

Underwriters Buy $11 Million In Bonds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An underwriting group headed by the Bank of America has purchased $11.1 million in bonds which were issued for the construction of a civic center complex and library at Huntington Beach.

Net interest cost to the nonprofit Huntington Beach Public Facilities Corp. was 5.4962 per cent.

Rights Panel Will Tackle Controversy

The Marin County Human Rights Commission, meeting today at 8 p.m. in Room 310 at Civic Center, is expected to delve again into the Marin City Ridgeland controversy, despite an order by county supervisors to stay out of the dispute.

The commission has disagreed — the controversy is a political dispute that doesn't violate anyone's human rights.

On Tuesday — one month after their "stay away" order — supervisors themselves agreed to take a closer look at the ridgeland dispute.

The controversy, which has pitted elements of the community against the county's housing authority and redevelopment agency, centers around the agencies' proposal to release title to the valuable ridgelands to a developer who has failed in other development commitments to the two agencies.

Women's Wrinkles Linked To Smoking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld says women who smoke develop wrinkles more readily — and at an early age — than women who do not smoke.

Steinfeld made the comment Wednesday in a speech to a women's group in announcing that the Public Health Service has decided to launch a major campaign "to counteract the mindless barrage of ads luring women into the trap of cigarette smoking."

Marin Legislator Hires New Aide

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — William L. Kahrl of Larkspur has been hired as an administrative assistant to Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Kahrl, 25, came to the senator's staff from a position with California Tomorrow, the statewide environmental organization which publishes Cry California. He also worked on development of the San Francisco-based organization's sketch plan for the future of the state, and wrote several articles for its publication.

Kahrl was graduated from Yale College in 1968, and attended Yale Graduate School before joining the New Haven Police Department to develop new programs.

In 1969, he received a fellowship in public affairs from the CORO Foundation of San Francisco, and his assignments as a CORO intern included work with the Nature Conservancy, Save our Seashore campaign headed by Behr and Behr's 1970 election campaign.

A resident of Larkspur since 1970, Kahrl has been active in the Larkspur Town Meeting. He resigned as its treasurer to take the job on Behr's staff.

Kahrl resides at 12 William Avenue with his wife, Kathleen, and their two sons, Christopher, 4, and Benjamin, 3 months. They will continue living in Larkspur.

Kahrl will be paid $12,000 a year in his new position.

Two Considering Job In Congress

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Two Republican senators say they are considering running for the seat to be vacated by GOP Rep. H. Allen Smith in the state's 20th congressional District.

Smith has announced he would not seek reelection this year.

Sen. John L. Harmer of Glendale said he would announce Tuesday whether to seek the office. He said he would do so after consulting "with a number of those people who advise me in this type of situation."

Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, said he was "definitely interested" in running for Congress and plans to give it "my very serious consideration." He said he would make a final decision the early part of next week.

Pleads Guilty To A Felony Charge

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Frederico M. Larios, 22, of Petaluma, pleaded innocent yesterday in Sonoma County Superior Court to a charge of felony drunken driving.

Judge Lincoln F. Mahan said a trial date would be set Wednesday. Larios was arrested Jan. 1 after a two-car accident on Petaluma Boulevard South at Highway 101 in which three persons were injured.

Split By Remap, Petaluma And Sonoma Go To Court

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The cities of Petaluma and Sonoma filed suit today asking the California Supreme Court to wipe out a legislative reapportionment plan that would split the communities into two Assembly districts.

The suit, filed at no cost to the cities by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, appealed to the court to either redraw the district lines or order the 1972 Legislature to do the job.

Splitting the two cities "would so divide these cities and the votes thereof so as to effectively disenfranchise them as political entities," the suit said.

The Legislature's plan (AB 12) already is before the court in a host of tests filed after the plan and other reapportionment bills were vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The court is expected to rule next Wednesday on the issues.

Bagley's brief argued that the two cities had been "victimized by a computer's numbers game."

Strict adherence to arithmetic equality among districts to meet the Supreme Court's "one-man, one-vote" edict was not enough to assure fairness, Bagley argued.

He wrote that "census tracts were disregarded and precinct lines were followed to maximize voting strength for a particular candidate in the Second (Assembly) District," a reference to Democratic attempts to draw a "safe" district to elect attorney Barry Keene of Santa Rosa.

(A drafting error, however, reportedly left Keene out of the new district, and a "clean-up" bill this session will be sought to correct such errors.)

Bagley noted that the Democratic plan would leave 67 per cent of Petaluma in his Seventh District, while splitting off 33 per cent into the Second District, now represented by Frank P. Belotti, R-Eureka.

"A reapportionment plan wich divides cities for partisan political purposes constitutes an invidious discrimination which violates the equal protection clause," Bagley argued.

Bagley, in an interview, stressed that he had no personal political stake in the suit, but had urged the cities to file the action because the proposed new lines would rob them of their "political integrity."

Has Building Ban Affected Land Value? Study Will Tell

A Marin County official said yesterday he will undertake a study to determine if the partial Southern Marin building ban has affected property values — and thus property taxes.

John H. Chambers, the county's chief appraiser, said the study will begin about March 1 — the date on which all properties theoretically are reassessed — and be finished about a month later.

The review will consist of examining sales records for parcels in the area covered by the Regional Water Quality Control Board's ban on new sewer hookups — which, in effect, prevents new construction.

If the records show land has been selling for less since the ban was imposed in June 1971, then property taxes on the land would be correspondingly lower, Chambers said.

In actual fact, however, Chambers said he doesn't expect much of a decline.

In some cases, parcels which have not been reassessed for several years are undervalued and thus the building ban may have prevented them from gaining value and held them at their old levels.

In other cases, he said, the building ban actually may have caused some developed parcels to increase in value by preventing new units from being built and thus making existing houses more sought after, thus more valuable.

Chambers said a similar study conducted on a limited basis in the Fairfax area did not show much decline in land values because the building ban in Ross Valley is of a more limited nature and numerous exceptions to it have been granted.

The partial building ban in Southern Marin, on the other hand, is projected to last another five years or so, the amount of time it will take the sanitary districts in the area to fully upgrade their sewer treatment, Chambers said.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board has said it will permit some sewer hookups so long as corresponding improvements to treatment systems are made.

Chambers said "about 15 or 20 developers" have told him they expect lower property assessments because of the ban, with some claiming their land is worthless because they are unable to build on it.

Collier Bill Would Pull Sonoma Out Of ABAG

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to pull Sonoma County out of the Association of Bay Area Governments has been introduced by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The bill (SB 27) orders the state Council on Intergovernmental Relations to transfer any county from one regional planning district to another if approved by a majority of the voters of the county and by the counties in the district to be joined. Sonoma's voters already have approved such a transfer.

Collier got a bill through the 1971 Legislature with the same intent, but Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed it. That bill (SB 920) would have created a North Coast Regional Planning Organization, but Reagan objected that the counties could form such an agency without legislation.

The governor's veto message, however, failed to note that such a North Coast grouping with Sonoma County required the approval of the intergovernmental relations council — which refused to approve the scheme. Collier's bill would override the council's objections.

The intergovernmental relations council's North Coast regional planning district at present exists largely on paper, but a spokesman for Collier said Sonoma's transfer could bring with it the county's share of federal planning funds that now go to ABAG.

Collier's new legislative attempt at the transfer was asked in a resolution last month by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors. The resolution declared that the laws governing the state council "do not give appropriate weight to the democratic process in determining the boundaries of regional planning districts."

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Guess who was born today, Jan. 13, and became famous as:

1. A popular 19th Century American author? A New York Unitarian minister, concerned with the plight of poor street boys, he wrote books showing that good guys finish first, making "Swift and Sure" that "Ragged Dick" only needs "Pluck and Luck": (A) Horatio Alger, Jr.; (B) Edward Bok; (C) George Curtis.

2. The president of a door-to-door sales company? It's no wonder this Canadian youth grew up (now 87) to win the Horatio Alger award, since he created a business which took his name and product to homes all over America: (A) Alfred Carl Fuller; (B) Earl of Avon; (C) Kenneth Tupper.

3. An influential New York journalist? A Hoosier boy who went to Oxford, he became a successful newspaperman (N.Y. Times), novelist, short story writer, broadcaster (ABC), and wartime government information chief (OWI): (A) Edward R. Murrow; (B) Elmer Davis; (C) Howard K. Smith.

4. A celebrated American poet? During the Civil War she became well known as the originator of the lyric, "All Quiet Along the Potomac," which was first published in 1861 in "Harper's Weekly" magazine: (A) Emily Dickinson; (B) Julia Ward Howe; (C) Ethel Lynn Beers.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Try This Hand For Excitement; It's A Beauty Start To Finish

If bridge ever becomes a spectator sport, much of the credit will go to hands like the one shown here today. A few hundred kibitzers watched every bid and play on a screen at the Las Vegas Hilton last month, when the legendary Italian Blue Team played a match against the Dallas Aces, current holders of the world championship. The visitors won, but the home team gave a good account of itself.

17 POINTS

Bobby Wolff's opening bid of one club on the South hand showed at least 17 points in high cards but promised nothing about the club suit. The rest of the bids were more natural, although very aggressive.

Oddly enough, Wolff and his partner, Jim Jacoby, were playing their version of the Blue Team Club system. Their opponents, Benito Garozzo and Pietro Forquet, who had developed the Blue Team Club bidding system, were playing the Precision Club, by arrangement with the inventor of that system, Chinese shipping magnate C. C.Wei.

The Americans were far behind in the match when this hand was dealt, and they bid the grand slam in the hope of regaining some of the lost ground. The Americans got their wish, but they needed six or seven more grand slams to tighten up the match.

LONG HESITATION

Garozzo opened the king of clubs from the West hand, and Wolff took the trick with dummy's ace. Wolff properly decided to go after the diamonds. He took the king and then led the ten of diamonds from dummy. East played low, and Wolff hesitated for what seemed an age. West was marked with unusual spade length and might well be short in diamonds.

BEST CHANCE

Finally Wolff played the ace of diamonds, and Garozzo calmly played the queen. Wolff broke out in a cold sweat but finally decided his best chance was to lead a low diamond and ruff it in the dummy in the hope that West could not overruff dummy's nine of hearts.

West actually followed suit, of course, and Wolff had no further problems. Nor did the audience, which settled back from a few hundred seat edges.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - K 10
♥ - A K Q J 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart if you use standard American bidding methods.

Airlines 'Back To Break-Even Point'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association which represents the nation's scheduled airlines, says the industry will bound back from 1970's $200 million loss to break even when 1971 figures are in.

Tipton said Tuesday the airlines have climbed out of their recession thanks to cost cutting, an increase in passenger traffic, and the impact of President Nixon's economic program.

The European Community Is Facing Another Crisis

By TAKASHI OKA
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BRUSSELS — "Gentlemen," said the fair-haired official with jaunty bow tie, "The European Community is in crisis again.

"We here at headquarters," he continued, "are like frogs in a milk can. The only way to save ourselves from drowning is to keep jumping until some day the milk turns to butter."

He was addressing a group of visiting journalists, and he did not want his name used, but he has been working at the gleaming glass-and-concrete headquarters of the European Community throughout the past decade. Like everyone else at headquarters, he has sworn to put the interests of the six-nation community before those of the member state to which he belongs.

He has had more than his share of frustrations. As he said, crises large and small have been the staple fare of the community ever since six West European nations — soon to possibly be 10 — banded together in the Treaty of Rome nearly 15 years ago.

In theory, the six nations — Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands — know that if they do not swim together they are quite likely to sink together. In practice, for sovereign governments to give up even one iota of their prerogatives is no easy matter, when each government large or small must respond to pressures coming from its own legislature and from myriads of conflicting political, economic, or social interest groups.

Yesterday Italy was the black sheep of the six —for refusing to jack up the price of imported American grains. Tomorrow's squabble could be between France and Holland over the price of butter.

These are the minor crises. They arise out of or can be related to three major challenges the community faces today — enlargement, solidification, and relations with the outside world, especially the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

On Jan. 1, 1973, the present community of six will become 10, if four candidates —Britain, Denmark, the Republic of Ireland, and Norway — complete their respective legislative and voting procedures successfully.

This enlarged community will have a population of 250 million. It will account for more than 40 per cent of world trade, and it will have a gross national product that could in time rival that of the United States. (In 1970, the GNP of the 10 came to $625 billion, compared with more than $1 trillion for the United States.)

But, as one British newspaper recently asked, "Europe — economic giant, political pygmie?" The political weight of the enlarged community will depend upon how unified a voice it projects. If six members have such a difficult time getting along together, how much more trouble will 10 have, some community officials ask.

Enlargement is technically so complicated, requiring detailed negotiations on so many different rules, regulations, and exceptions, that almost all the energies of the headquarters staff have been concentrated for many months on this one subject. But officials freely admit that enlargement naturally leads into the second major challenge facing them —that of solidification, what the French call approfondissement and what the official with the bow tie would characterize as turning the milk to butter.

General de Gaulle, who precipitated the community's first major crisis in 1962 when he vetoed Britain's application for membership, is no longer here. The contradictions he embodied — his call for a "European Europe," coupled with his insistence on complete freedom of action for France — still vex the community.

Europe showed its disarray in financial and monetary policy as recently as last year. In February the six agreed to work toward monetary union. But in May international speculation against the mark forced the West Germans to float their currency, a move bitterly opposed by France. By fall, after President Nixon cut loose the dollar from gold, the French, the Italians, and the British had more or less pegged their currencies, while the Germans and the others floated. Trade patterns inside the community were disrupted; the French profited from their cheaper franc, while the Germans complained of approaching recession and unemployment.

Still, by the time the finance ministers of the Group of Ten, the 10 richest non-Communist nations in the world, met in Washington last December to fix new international parity rates, the Europeans had managed to work out a common front, including Britain, even though the British were not formally inside the community. Much of the community's work this year will have to be spent sorting out the consequences of the new rates.

The lesson of the monetary crisis and of all the crises the community has experienced so far, community officials say, is that no member state is ever going to sacrifice any interest it considers vital.

Community officials say they hope that the entry of Britain, with its strong parliamentary traditions, will help to put more life into the European parliament and make it a more effective lobby for group interests cutting across national boundaries.

Problems like pollution and the environment, the officials say, cannot be effectively tackled solely within national frontiers any more. And obviously groups both benefitting from and opposing specific environmental measures cut across national boundaries.

Finally, what of community relations with the world's two superpowers, the U.S. and the Soviet Union?

Moscow has consistently opposed the coming together of Western Europe. Clearly the Kremlin prefers to deal with weaker individual states than with a confederation speaking with one voice.

The U.S., on the other hand, has favored the idea of a united Europe since the days of the Marshall Plan. But in recent years, the American attitude has seemed ambivalent to many Europeans. When the European continent lay prostrate after a devastating war, the U.S. was a powerful benefactor, protecting its allies and its former German enemy against the new Soviet threat, while helping them generously with economic aid.

Today, Western Europe still depends on the United States for the nuclear deterrent, though both Britain and France are members of the nuclear club. even the French, who walked out of NATO's integrated planning setup in 1966, want American troops to remain in Europe, while at the same time promoting the idea of an all-European conference on security and cooperation including the Communist Warsaw Pact powers.

In economic terms, however, the community of six is already a powerful rival to the U.S., and when it is enlarged will be a much more formidable opponent. Washington argues that it still favors a united Europe but does not see why such a Europe should set up a tariff wall against outsiders.

It is especially anxious to see revisions in the community's common agricultural policy, which keeps European food prices high while restricting imports from the outside. Even so, the Europeans argue, they imported nearly $2 billion worth of agricultural products from the U.S. last year.

Meanwhile, the U.S. struggles with a recession at home and a multibillion-dollar deficit in its international balance of payments. The Vietnam war is winding down, but continues. All around the world Washington calls on its allies and partners to pick up a greater share of the common defense burden. More and more Europeans wonder whether Americans are not tired of their long involvement in the affairs of the world, whether the American tide is not destined to recede even from Europe, which for so many years seemed to be at the center of American concerns overseas.

Americans are irritated at Europe's seeming failure to understand their problems, while Europeans are both irritated and anxious about what seems to be going on in the U.S. Europeans and Americans alike are conscious that America is not as strong as it used to be, and this at a time when Soviet military strength seems to be more conspicuous than ever.

For the soon-to-be enlarged community, and for the U.S., this is a time of groping and searching. The relationship between a Washington preoccu- economic strength and its continuing political and military weaknesses is bound to be difficult.

Yet one thing is already clear: A European community of six or 10 nations, each with its own diverse but democratic institutions, brought together in a more effective means of common decision-making, is not only in the national interest of each of the member states, but of that of the U.S. as well.

To return to the image of the frogs in the milk can, under all those kicking feet, something solid is bound to begin to form some day. That exhilarating moment is what the bow-tied official and all his friends are working for.

Office Is Robbed For College Tuition

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Andre Almond, 18, of Philadelphia, was tackled by police Wednesday shortly after a downtown gas company office was robbed of $125.

Police said he told them he needed money to defray expenses next semester at a North Carolina college where he is studying criminology.

Funds Sought For Crippled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, Wednesday introduced legislation appropriating an additional $1.2 million for crippled children's services.

A similar measure was vetoed last year by Gov. Ronald Reagan who has since changed his position and now supports it.

The governor altered his position after he said he learned that some crippled children were being denied services because of a lack of funds.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most With Heart Problems Can Drive Car Without Danger

Most people with heart trouble can drive a car without endangering themselves or others. Occasionally we read about a person having a fatal heart attack while driving. However, there is a good possibility that the victim might have died had he remained at home or at his desk. On the other hand, a person with advanced heart disease should ask his doctor about the advisability of driving, especially if angina pectoris, shortness of breath, blackouts, dizziness, or palpitation are bothersome. These symptoms could create safety hazards. The same applies to medications used in treating cardiac complaints.

THERE ARE many physical and emotional aspects to driving. Power brakes and power steering lessen the energy requirements, but mechanical failures, or blowouts demand immediate action. A long walk to a gas station, or telephone is most hazardous, especially on hot, or cold, and windy days. More than one cardiac sufferer has collapsed while jacking up his car to remove a flat. Keeping the car in good condition can eliminate some of these risks.

Tooling along in busy traffic at a pretty good clip, or under poor road conditions taxes the emotional stability. Sudden danger, or stress may induce chest pain, palpitation, or an increase in the blood pressure. Near-accidents may be fatal to the driver. A person with symptomatic heart trouble should compromise, and restrict his driving to short trips, slow speeds, and in uncongested traffic with a responsible passenger at his side.

EXTREMES IN weather also create problems if the automobile is parked outside. In winter, the inside temperature of the car gradually approaches that of the outside. Furthermore, in five minutes the cold car can be warmed from an overnight low of 32 degrees Fahrenheit to 75 degrees Fahrenheit. Angina might develope while waiting for the car to warm up. This possibility is prevented by preheating the car.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

THE FIRST BABY

REPLY

Various factors influence the period of gestation. However, young mothers usually deliver their first child earlier than the date set. But if a woman is 35 or older, there may be a delay with the first baby.

APPETITE AND AGE

I. B. writes: Is a decrease in appetite natural in old age?

REPLY

Yes, and no. Many elderly men and women have excellent appetites; other oldsters do not. Much depends upon their health, and whether they are active, happy, and content.

HEALTHFUL SALADS

T. I. writes: Is it necessary to eat vegetable salads to have good health?

REPLY

Cities Get Fees From The State

Cities in Marin and Southern Sonoma and the two counties have received $237,279 in motor vehicle license fees for fiscal 1971-72, State Controller Houston I. Flournoy reported.

Condominium Finally Has Board Approval

After months of opposition, the Marinwood Community Services District board finally has approved revised plans for a Kaiser Aetna condominium development.

At a special meeting Tuesday night, the board endorsed the 109-unit development on 18 acres at Las Gallinas Avenue and Miller Creek Road.

The board and residents of the area opposed the development when it originally was to have contained 185 units.

The board voted Tuesday, however, to ask the Marin County Planning Commission to require dedication to the district of open space planned in the project by the developers and asked that a public tennis court be constructed in the development.

The board also approved an 11-lot subdivision on Ninestone Court for James R. Erickson, with the provision that one lot be deeded to the district for open space.

Tiburon Trails Plan On Agenda

The Tiburon Trails Plan, which envisions meandering trails along the Tiburon Ridgeline, will be considered Wednesday by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission.

Among the major features is a provision calling for preservation of trail rights-of-way on the ridge when and if it is developed.

Wednesday's meeting will be the first under the commission's new meeting schedule approved last month that calls for sessions on the third Wednesday of each month, instead of the second. Meetings still will be held at the Civic Center.

ONLY SHIPS SERVICED BY OFFICE

DETROIT, — There's a post office here on the river front that is said to be the only postal unit in the world devoted exclusively to the delivery of mail to vessels under way.

The mail boat delivers to as many as 65 craft each day. About 800,000 pieces will be delivered to 40,000 seamen in 1972.

The unique service was started in 1895.

Second Concert To Be Sunday

The second in a series of concerts by San Rafael High School musicians will be presented Sunday at 4 p.m. at St. Sebastian's Church in Greenbrae. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted to help pay for a spring music tour.

Included in the program will be works by Mozart, Husa, Gounod, Persichetti and Nelhybel and a J.S. Bach cantata conducted by Gary Walker. Baritone solo in the cantata will be sung by Byron Jones, director of vocal music for San Rafael Schools.

Woodwind and brass ensemble musicians are members of the San Rafael High School Symphony Band, conducted by Terry Summa and Charlene Wilkerson.

Fee Hike To Benefit Trout Angler

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Part of the money raised by the new boost in hunting and fishing license fees would be used to improve trout angling under the $22 million Department of Fish and Game budget proposed yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

In his proposal, Reagan estimated the hike in license fees enacted last year will raise $5 million annually. He proposed spending $580,000 of the increase this year, and putting the rest aside for future use.

Reagan noted $5 million from the license boost will give the department a $9 million surplus in the Fish and Game Fund.

The budget for the 1972-73 fiscal year calls for spending $100,000 to stock reservoirs near metropolitan areas with trout, and $57,000 to improve maps and access routes for ocean anglers.

Reagan proposed hiring 15 new game wardens at a cost of $287,000 and spending $34,000 to start a management program for the north King deer herd.

The decline in the North Coast steelhead population would be studied at a cost of $65,000 and an unspecified amount would be spent to hike production at the Black Rock Hatchery by 500,000 fish.

Marin Tars Drop Overtime Tilt To Contra Costa

By RALPH CHATOIAN
I-J Sports Editor

It was like two different basketball games last night in Kentfield. The College of Marin Tars had a tie in the first one of regulation 40 minutes but were blown off the court in the five-minute game.

When all the fireworks were over, Contra Costa College of San Pablo had beaten the Tars, 83-70, outscoring them 17-4 in an overtime period after Marin had rallied to tie the game in regulation time, 66 all.

The loss, witnessed by 1,200 shrieking, disbelieving fans, knocked the Mariners from the top spot in the Camino Norte Conference standings. Contra Costa is 3-0, Marin 2-1. The loss also will knock Marin down a few notches from its lofty No. 4 state ranking it held before the start of last night's game.

Marin forward Joe Casteel, hustling throughout the game on both sides of the court, fouled out with less than a minute gone in the overtime period and that seemed to change the momentum of the game drastically.

He had scored 13 points, including 5 of 10 shots from the field, when he fouled out, 4:10 left and Marin trailing by only two points, 68-66. From there Marin never got its offense in gear and were called for four more fouls. The guests thanked the gracious Tars by making 9 of their 10 overtime free throws in turning a very close game into a five-minute rout.

Marin coach John Panagakis agreed. "We just lost some momentum when Casteel fouled out. We couldn't settle down on offense," he said. "We forced some bad shots. It's really too bad because I thought our kids did an outstanding job. We just let up in that overtime period."

It was a fine performance from freshman guard Joe DeMaestri who scored 21 points, including some baskets from 15 and 20 feet out. it was DeMaestri who played such a big part in Marin's late rally to tie the game.

Toailing 65-60 with only two minutes left in regulation time, DeMaestri hit on a jumper and then on a driving lay-in and with only 28 seconds left on the clock, it was Contra Costa's Comets 66, Marin 64.

Then Joe Smith tried a jump shot from the side and the crowd went wild as the ball tore through the net, apparently tying the game. But a ref's whistle blew just before the shot, keeping Marin two points down and sending Smith to the free throw line for one shot. He made it and Marin was down by only one. When Contra Costa took the ball out, 21 seconds left, Carl Cotright bumped DeMaestri to the floor and drew a foul.

The curly-haired DeMaestri calmly walked to the free throw line, paused and put up a perfect free throw to tie the game. Marin played good defense and caused Cotright to force up a shot just before the buzzer and it didn't come close, sending the game into overtime and that disastrous five minutes.

Smith, normally Marin's top scorer, never found his touch and made only two of 19 shots from the field and ended up with six points. Center Roosevelt Green picked up some of the slack with 17 points.

Most of Contra Costa's scoring came from smooth moving Floyd Harris with 23 points, Wayne Kemp with 16 and 6-8 center Floyd Allen, 15.

Contra Costa won in most of the statistical departments, outshooting Marin from the field (32 of 66 for 48 per cent to Marin's 29 of 84, 35 per cent) and outrebounding the Tars, 46-39. Marin was called for 20 fouls, Contra Costa 13.

Contra Costa	35	31	17	—	83
Marin	32	34	4	—	70

Contra Costa: Harris, 11-2-23; Kemp, 6-4-16; Allen, 5-5-15; D. Moore, 4-2-10; Cotright, 3-4-10; B. Moore, 3-2-8. Totals: 32-19-83.

Marin: DeMaestri, 9-3-21; Green, 7-3-17; Casteel, 5-3-13; Herrnberger, 4-1-9; Smith, 2-2-6; Traub, 2-0-4. Totals: 29-12-70.

IN CROSBY

Nicklaus Heads Field

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Last year Jack Nicklaus won four tournaments and a quarter million dollars while playing in only 18 events.

His 1972 plans call for about the same kind of schedule and, naturally, he'd like to win another quarter million plus at least one of the big four of the PGA championship, Masters and British and U.S. Opens.

Nicklaus took the 1971 PGA title, which he values as one of the really big ones. Today, after a layoff of five weeks he starts off in pursuit of all that money in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, one of those carnival events on the winter schedule. However, its winners purse of $28,000 is nothing to laugh at.

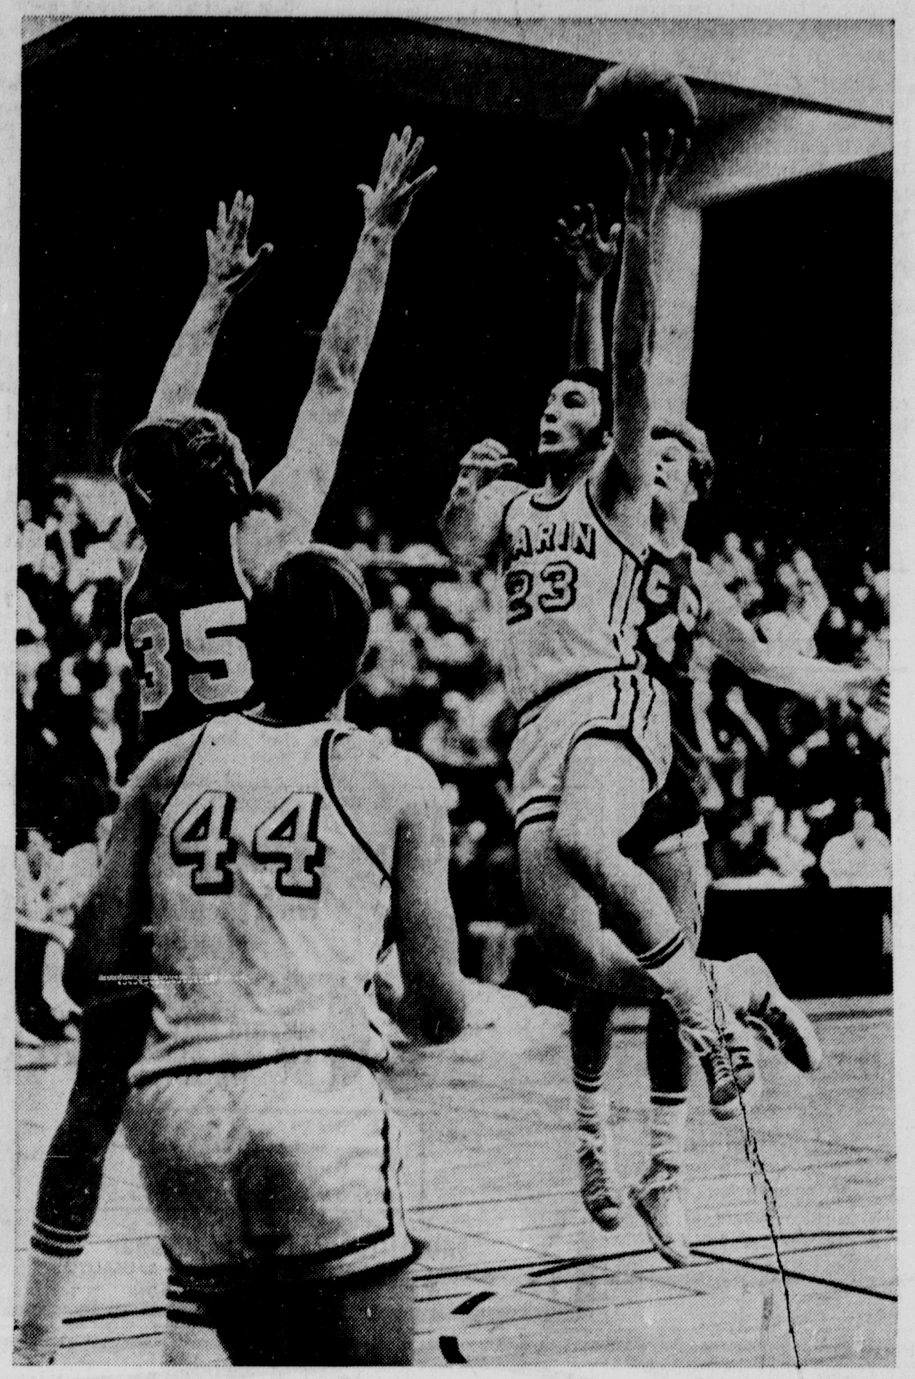
Nicklaus, Los Angeles Open champ George Archer, 1971 PGA player of the year Lee Trevino, Billy Casper and defending champ Tom Shaw are the "name" players in a 170-man Crosby pro field.

Among the missing this year is Arnold Palmer, who played poorly in the Los Angeles Open and has gone home to rest up—until the Hawaiian Open next month. Like Jack, Palmer plans to play in from 16 to 18 events this year. His thinking, he said at Los Angeles, is that e no longer can play well if he competes in 25 to 30 events.

Trevino, who won the British and U.S. Open titles last year and $231,000, also had putting problems at Los Angeles. He never has won a California tournament and said he thinks it's time he did.

"I've played well in California," said Trevino, "But somehow I've never won. Maybe my turn will come up this winter. I don't look back on what happened the year before. This is a new year and a new ball game."

Shaw won the 1971 Crosby and nothing else the rest of the year while Casper broke his shutout at the Kaiser International in October. Both play well in the Crosby. In fact, Casper is a two-time champ.



GOING UP — Marin Tar guard Joe DeMaestri soared through Contra Costa Comet defenders last night in Kentfield to try a short, lefthanded hook. The Tars fell 83-70 in overtime.

OLYMPIC COACH

Hal Fischer Leads Clinic

An Olympic Games coach and about a dozen of the top amateur basketball players in the Nation will conduct a cage clinic at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Terra Linda High School gym.

Veteran mentor Hal Fischer will direct the activity which will feature several players scheduled to compete in the second annual East-West College All-Star Basketball game at Terra Linda High Feb. 17.

"At least eight of the players at the clinic will be first team All-Americans or boys who have received All-American recognition," promised Fischer.

Attending the clinic will be boys from Vallecito Junior High, Miller Creek Junior High and Santa Venetia Middle School and the freshman boys from Terra Linda High.

The clinic will be presented in four parts.

Fischer, who also has coached U.S. teams in the Pan-American Games and in many contests behind the Iron Curtain, will first talk to the boys about international competition.

Next will be a demonstration of some of the basic basketball fundamentals by the players while Fischer explains.

As a crowd pleaser, the third part of the clinic will be a short scrimmage between the members of Fischer's team and the Terra Linda Freshman squad.

The crowd will then be excused at 3 o'clock and the members of Fischer's team will work individually for at least an hour with the players on the Terra Linda Freshman and Class B teams.

Billie Jean King Wins; Helga Niessen Upended

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Billie Jean King appears to be ready for a winning and profitable season on the pro tennis scene, but today she finds an old enemy in her way.

Mrs. King, who became the first woman athlete in history to win more than $100,000 last year, disposed of Ceci Martinez of San Francisco 6-1, 6-3, at Civic Auditorium Wednesday in first round action at the $17,000 British Motor Car pro tennis tournament, opening event in the Virginia Slims circuit.

Tonight, Mrs. King squares off against longtime rival Nancy Gunter, the number 8 seed.

The only seeded player to lose Wednesday was fifth seeded Helga Niessen Masthoff of West Germany, who was beaten, 6-1, 6-2 by unranked Australian Helen Gourlay.

Number two seed Rosie Casals defeated Pam Geeguarden 6-2, 6-4, while number three rated Francoise Durr of France beat Valeri Ziegenfuss 6-2, 7-6.

Finals are set for Saturday night with $3,400 going to the winner.

SUPER BOWL DUEL

Renfro To Face Paul Warfield

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Balding Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys looks 10 years older than Paul Warfield, the Miami Dolphins' wide receiver with the fleet feet and the boyish features.

But Renfro, at 29, isn't worried about looks this week as he prepares to defend against the 28-year-old Warfield in one of the feature matchups of Super Bowl VI. The one look Renfro doesn't want to see is the big No. 42 on the back of Warfield's jersey.

Warfield, who showed Baltimore safety Rich Volk his heels on a 75-yard touchdown pass in the American conference title game, said he has never beaten Renfro on a long pass and doesn't expect to do it Sunday.

Even though the Dolphins never have played the Cowboys, Renfro and Warfield have met when Warfield played for Cleveland, a team which twice upset Dallas in playoff games.

"He had some great games against us," Renfro said. "He caught a lot of down-and-in patterns against us."

That's the play President Nixon suggested for Shula to use Sunday.

"I remember one game I was a free safety and switched to the corner," Renfro recalled. "I hoped they wouldn't throw to him (Warfield). But they did and he caught it.

"He has great speed and quickness. His feet are always moving and you have to keep your feet moving."

Warfield, who first met Renfro in their college days, said he is still trying to put the one big move on Renfro.

"I remember once I thought I had him on a deep pattern," Warfield said. "At the point I made my move, I thought I was going to beat him, but he made a miraculous recovery and knocked the ball down. That man's got tremendous ability.

Post Season Grid Game Approved

Marin County Athletic League's board of managers yesterday voted approval of a measure allowing the league champion football team to play in a post season game.

The board — made up of principals of the league schools — voted 6-1, San Rafael principal Dr. Peter Palches against, to allow a post season game between the Marin champ team and a neighboring school, preferably from the North Bay.

North Bay League representatives have earlier voiced negative reactions to such a game, but MCAL officials are hoping to get a team between champion teams from both leagues.

In another subject at the meeting at San Rafael High School, a vote to switch the MCAL water polo season from winter to fall failed for the second time.

The board failed to obtain the required two-thirds majority to pass the measure. The vote to change the season was 4-3, Novato, San Marin and San Rafael votes opposing.

The board, which voted 3-3, for the change at their last meeting in September, will take up the matter again at its spring meeting in April, reported league commissioner George Corson. Main objection of the move is that girls use the school pools for their swimming season in the fall, and such a change would cause overcrowding of the pool.

There still has been no settlement over San Rafael High School's protest of a water polo match against Novato, won by Novato on Dec. 14, 14-8. Board president Stanley V. Onderdonk of Novato is expected to appoint a protest committee, made up of three principals of schools not involved in the protest, in the next day or two.

The board also voted to allow schools three, instead of two, golf matches per week and increased number of matches to seven from five in tennis.

HOCKEY SHUTOUT FOR BIRTHDAY

Meloche's Wife Gets Gift

By DAVID DIETZ

OAKLAND — Nicole Meloche, wife of the California Golden Seals' rookie goalie, Gilles Meloche, turned 21 yesterday with a special birthday request of her husband.

"She said she wanted a shutout," Meloche said, popping an ice cube from his mouth amid the gaiety of the Seals' dressing room. "I said I'd be happy if we could win."

Nicole Meloche's hope was fulfilled. Led by her husband and his hustling, tight-checking teammates, the Seals whitewashed the Minnesota North Stars, 2-0, last night to recapture sole possession of third place in the National Hockey League's West Division.

It was Meloche's second shutout of the year and the victory came two nights after the Seals were bombed by Philadelphia, 10-3. Both Meloche and Kurt played in that game, although neither was blamed for the drubbing.

"This one wasn't as tough as the Boston shutout," Meloche said. "I don't think I had but three tough chances all night."

"I would say that this was as good a game as we've played," Seals' coach Vic Stasiuk said. "We keep coming back from disastrous games."

Meloche faced 24 Minnesota shots, 15 in the first period, which ended in a 0-0 deadlock. Defenseman and captain Carol Vadnais scored first for the Seals, breaking in alone on North Star goalie Gump Worsley in the second period, and Ivan Boldirev made it 2-0 in the third while Minnesota had a man advantage.

Vadnais took a pass from Boldirev at the North Star blue line and eluded two defensemen. He slid the puck home after faking the 42-year-old Worsley to the ice.

The moustachioed defenseman, criticized of late by fans and press for poor play, said, "I don't listen to the fans. We don't have too many, and it's hard to please them all."

Score by periods:

California	0	1	1	— 2

First period—No scoring. Penalties—O'Brien 0:27, Vadnais 1:45, Reid 6:53, Vadnais 7:50, Drouin 18:32.

Second period—1. California, Vadnais 8 (Boldirev, Redmond) 13:15. Penalties—Harris 0:27, Burns 11:16, Hicke 19:38.

Third period—2. California, Boldirev 7 (Shmyr, McKechnie) 8:01. Penalty—Gilbertson 6:42.

Shots on goal by:

Minnesota	15	5	4	— 24
California	8	18	9	— 35

Goaltenders: Minnesota—Worsley; California—Meloche.

Giants, Oakland A's Draft Right-Handers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The two Bay Area major league baseball teams picked right-handed pitchers from California during yesterday's phase of the annual free agent draft here.

The San Francisco Giants took Ken Kollmyer, a 6-foot-4, 202-pound 19-year-old from San Diego, while Oakland drafted Charles Hendrix of El Cajon.

Eric Raich, University of Southern California junior pitcher who was the No. 1 choice in the regular phase of free agent draft hoped to sign shortly with the Cleveland Indians.

Bob Koeppel, a six-foot, 190-pound first baseman from Peoria, Ill., who attended Bradley, was the No. 1 choice in the secondary phase and has signed with the Minnesota Twins. He was an All-America selection by the Sporting News last year and had an .883 slugging percentage.

Three sons of former major leaguers were selected. Gary Erskine, son of Carl Erskine, was the 119th player selected in the regular draft by Cincinnati; Joe Krznich, son of Rocky Krznich, was the 14th player taken in the first round of the regular phase by the New York Yankees, and Roy Smalley III, son of the former Cubs' shortstop, was chosen by the Boston Red Sox in the secondary phase.

Clifton Butcher, a 5-foot, 11-inch 185-pound pitcher from Tulsa, Okla., became the No. 2 selection in the regular phase when he was picked by the San Diego Padres and James Owen by the Texas Rangers.

Other first-round choices were third baseman Ricky Knepper of Boonsboro, Md., by Philadelphia; pitcher Robert Alexander of Cass City, Mich., by Milwaukee; 6-foot, 10-inch pitcher Wayne Piper of Omaha, Neb., by Montreal; pitcher Lewis Lerner of Panama City, Calif., by Minnesota and infielder Greg Sinatro of West Hartford, Conn., by Cincinnati.

Also, outfielder Thomas Donohue of Westbury, N.Y., by California; shortstop William Meyer of Vero Beach, Fla., by Houston; pitcher Murphy Eppinette of Arabia, La., by the White Sox; pitcher Sam Humphries of San Bernardino, Calif., by Atlanta; Kriznich by the Yankees; infielder-outfielder Ron Diggle of Lakewood, Calif., by the Mets; pitcher Cliff Holland of San Carlos, Calif., by Boston and first baseman Rex Peters of Midland Park, N.J., by the Cubs.

Additionally, outfielder Kenzy Davis of Fontana, Calif., by Kansas City; pitcher John Adams of Phoenix, Ariz., by Los Angeles; pitcher Alfred Callis of Anaheim, Calif., by Detroit; and pitcher Robert Gerdes of Viami, Fla., by St. Louis.

NHL STARS GAME

Eastern Division Team Adds 5 New York Rangers

MONTREAL (UPI)—Players from the three leading teams in the National Hockey League Eastern Division will make up the 12-man East squad for the 25th annual All-Star game, Jan. 25, in Bloomington, Minn.

The division-leading New York Rangers placed five members on the All-Star team. The third place Montreal Canadiens put four members on the squad while the Boston Bruins, in second spot, had three players named.

Boston defenseman Bobby Orr was the only unanimous selection, drawing a maximum 105 points in the voting conducted by three members from each East Diviision chapter of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association.

The four Montreal players named were Goaltender Ken Dryden, who is now inactive with a back injury, Defenseman Jean-Claude Tremblay, Right Winger Yvan Cournoyer and Left Winger Frank Mahovlich, who is also out of action with suspected tonsilitis.

The Big M, who has played in 12 previous All-Star games, is tied with former great Left Winger Ted Lindsay for second place, behind Detroit's Gordie Howe, in the all-time list of All-Star game point leaders. Each has 10 points.

In addition to Orr, who will be making his fifth appearance in the All-Star contest, the Bruins placed Phil Esposito and Defenseman Dallas SMith on the All-Star squad.

Coach Al Macneil, now with the Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League, will coach the Eastern squad. He earned the right last spring when he directed the Canadiens to the Stanley Cup.

Bill Reay, the Chicago coach whose Black Hawks went down to defeat to Montreal in the Stanley Cup finals last year, will pilot the West Division All-Stars.

The western team, announced Tuesday, will be made up of seven Hawks, four members of the Minnesota North Stars and Center Gary Unger of the St. Louis Blues.

ALL-STARS

Utah Trio Added To West Team

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Western Division-leading Utah Stars placed Zelmo Beaty, Willie Wise and Glen Combs in the starting lineup for the ABA All-Star game in Louisville, Ky. on Jan. 29.

League writers and broadcasters from the 11 American Basketball Association cities Wednesday also selected Roger Brown of Indiana and Ralph Simpson of Denver to round out the starting five against the East.

Completing the ballot selectees were Mel Daniels of Indiana, Steve Jones and Donnie Freeman of Dallas, Wilbert Jones of Memphis and Wendell Ladner, who was traded by Memphis to Carolina of the East Division but will play for the West.

LaDell Anderson of Utah, coach of the West Stars, will pick two other players to round out the 12-man team.

Beaty, who spent most of his career in the National Basketball Association, collected 52 first place votes and 250 points in leading the balloting. He is averaging almost 25 points a game and 14 rebounds a contest.

'We Don't Need Ali' Says Frazier's Boss

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— Muhammad Ali's talk about being anxious for a return championship bout with Joe Frazier is so far just that —a lot of talk, according to Frazier's manager, Yancey "Yank" Durham.

"Yeah, I've been hearing about Ali talking here and talking there about he wants to fight Frazier again," said Durham. "If he's so anxious, how come nobody has talked to me, huh?

"Herbert Muhammad is the man who arranges things for him," Durham continued. "He has not talked to me at all. Ali is going around fighting a lot of people, but he hasn't made a move to fight Frazier again. As far as we're concerned, Joe's the champion and Ali needs us. We don't need him."

Frazier, looking sound and sharp after 160 rounds of sparring —more, Durham says, than he ever has done prior to any other fight, will defend his title for the first time since beating Ali when he steps into the ring at Rivergate Arena at 9 p.m. CST Saturday night against virtually unknown Terry Daniels of Dallas, Tex.

"He would have fought sooner —he wanted to fight in December," said Durham. "But I wasn't able to arrange for it. I thought for a while there we would have a fight with George Chuvalo, but it didn't work out."

Meanwhile, the countdown moves toward the Saturday night scrap which, however lopsided it appears on paper — and hardly a heavyweight championship fight in recent years has looked more like a mismatch, is a full-fledged title fight with Frazier's crown every bit as much on the line as it was against Ali.

The contrast between Frazier and Daniels in workouts here — held in a ring set up on the roof of a French Quarter hotel amid steel girders and cement block walls —has been startling. The champion, who weighed as much as 230 pounds a few months ago, now is down to 207 pounds and looks hard.

AT MEETING

ABA Refs Face Ire Of Hannum

DENVER (UPI)—Alex Hannum, a veteran of 20 years in professional basketball, says he is ready to blow the whistle on officiating in the American Basketball Association.

Hannum, coach and general manager of the Denver Rockets and former San Francisco Warriors mentor, said Wednesday he would discuss the situation with the Board of Trustees of the ABA.

Hannum said the situation reached a head in Tuesday night's 114-99 loss to the Indiana Pacers.

"There is to be a meeting of the trustees during the All-Star Break in Louisville (Jan. 29) and I will ask at that time that officiating in our league be discussed," Hannum said.

Ground-Gaining Quintet To Play In NFL Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The "1,000-yard Club" is still pretty exclusive in professional football but the Pro Bowl game on Jan. 23 will have five running backs who have gained at least that much in one season.

Newest members of the club are John Brockington of Green Bay, who galloped for 1,105 as a rookie in the 1971 season; Steve Owens of the Detroit Lions, who ground out 1,035 in his second season of pro ball, and Willie Ellison of the Los Angeles Rams, who made exactly 1,000 in his fifth season.

Ellison also set a one-game National Football League record of 247 yards rushing against New Orleans.

They will play for the NFC in the Pro Bowl against the AFC all-stars, who include Denver's Floyd Little, with 1,135 yards, and Miami's Larry Csonka, with 1,051.

The fifth member of the club is Larry Brown of Washington with the NFC. He made it in 1970 with 1,125 yards. He was injured in '71 but almost made it again with 948.

Detroit's Domed Stadium Gains Tigers As Tenants

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

DETROIT — A $126 million "domed stadium which is the envy of the world" has taken its most significant step to date toward becoming a reality on the Detroit riverfront — it has the Tigers as its principal tenants.

The Tigers signed a 40-year lease for games in the controversial planned structure yesterday, it was announced by club owner John E. Fetzer, for what was believed to be little or nothing in rent.

The development apparently finalized the ideological split between the Tigers and Detroit Lions over a new stadium site and meant they will no longer be sharing the same showers after 1975, target date for completion of the structure to replace antiquated Tiger stadium.

SPORT SHORTS

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — Half of the Philadelphia Phillies' infield appears intact following the signing yesterday of record-setting shortstop Larry Bowa and third baseman Don Money.

Bowa and Money were among the first five Phils to ink their 1972 contracts, unlike last year when they were the last to do so. Also signed by general manager John Quinn were rightfielder Roger Freed and heavy-hitting first baseman Greg Luzinski and first baseman outfielder Tommy Hutton, both rookies.

Bowa last season established a major league mark for shortstops with fewest errors (11) and highest fielding percentage of (.987), records previously held by Chicago Cubs' great Ernie Banks.

CLEVELAND — Righthander Steve Dunning became the seventh Cleveland Indian to sign his 1972 contract Wednesday.

Dunning, beginning his third season with the tribe, appeared in 31 games in 1971, compiling an 8-14 record and a 4.50 earned run average.

The Indians also announced they had placed utility infielder Chuck Hinton on waivers to give him his outright release.

Bowling

DENVER — Jimmy McHugh of New York rolled a 2,792-pin series yesterday to grab the first round lead in the $50,000 Denver Open Bowling Tournament.

Garner On Top In MCAL Scoring

A few early-season oddities are mixed in with the more normal performances in this week's Marin County Athletic League basketball statistics.

As usual, Will Garner of Tamalpais is leading the individual scoring with a 22.0 points-per-game average. And, as usual, Redwood is leading the team performance statistics.

An oddity is that Redwood has an average margin of victory of 30½ points a game, a figure which probably won't hold up all season. The Giants have averaged 75 points per outing, best in the MCAL, while surrendering 44.5, second only to Tamalpais.

It's even odder for freewheeling Tam to be the defensive leader, but that results from holding Drake to 29 points in a game both teams would rather forget. The Indians scored only 36 themselves, putting them sixth in the offensive statistics, which may be the biggest oddity of all.

Another statistic sure to change is San Marin's average margin of defeat, an astronomical 37.0, resulting from the unhappy coincidence of meeting the MCAL's two highest-scoring teams in its first two games.

Garner leads in field goals made, 19, while San Rafael's Jerry Molinari and Terra Linda's John Buckley lead in free throws made, 10 each.

Mark Lowey is second in scoring, 17.5, with Molinari tied for third at 16.0 with Marin Catholic's Tim Stone. Stone missed one game with influenza.

Redwood continues to demonstrate balanced scoring with four men in double figures — Tim Hennessy (15.5), Mike Connor (14.0), Steve McGee (12.5), and Sam Farb (11.0). Rich Hagler is averaging 9.5 for the Giants.

San Rafael, which ranks third in team offense, also has four men in double figures — Molinari, Doni Canfield (13.5), Bill Lechner (12.5) and Duke Bessee (10.0).

Best one-two punch is Terra Linda's Buckley and Lowey, scoring 31.5 between them.

If the tire fails due to such defects, Montgomery Ward will replace the tire FREE during the first 20% of original tread life, and for a prorated charge based on tread wear received during the remainder of the tread life. If the tire fails due to road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) during the original tread life, Montgomery Ward will replace the tire for a prorated charge based on tread wear received.

Prorated charge is based on the regular exchange price in effect at the retail store to which returned or the current catalog price in effect at the store or agency to which returned, in either case including F.E.T. Original tread life is to the top of the tread wear indicator.

For service under this guarantee return tire with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.

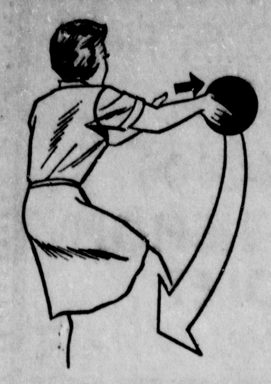
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Have you ever bumped your right knee with the bowling ball on the way back? Hurts, doesn't it? And it destroys your rhythm. When this happens no doubt you have started your backswing from too near the center of your body. The ball is on its way to the right, or outside. Shift the ball slightly right in the pushaway and concentrate on swinging it straight back.

Ski Cup Queen Advances

BADGASTEIN, Austria (UPI) —The world's top women skiers competed today in the last big slalom trial before bidding for Olympic medals next month at Sapporo, Japan.

The two-day classic Silverjug Ski Meet opened here Wendesday with defending World Cup champion Annemarie Proell of Austria winning the downhill race and thus moving closer to World Cup leader Francoise Macchi of France.

Today's slalom will be followed shortly by the Classic Ski Meet at Grindelwald, Switzerland, before the cream of women skiers leaves for Japan.

It was also one of the last chances for the World Cup contenders to increase their point score before the races will be marked mainly by the rush for Olympic gold.

Miss Macchi currently leads the World Cup rankings with 156 points ahead of Miss Proell's 138 and France's Jacqueline Rouvier with 60 points.

Since Miss Rouvier is out of contention with a broken leg, the World Cup competition has turned more and more into a battle between Miss Macchi and Miss Proell.

William And Mary Coach Picks 3 Aides

THE SKI SCENE

Fledgling Pro Ski Organization Rejects Clock, Injects Interest

By CHARLIE COANE

Pro tennis, golf and auto racing can make it — so why not pro ski racing?

The fact is that pro ski racing has been around, but now former U.S. Ski Team coach Bob Beattie has organized a group known as the International Ski Racers Association (ISRA). This band of touring pro ski racers will be appearing at more than a dozen areas to race for the dollars.

The difference between the ISRA and pro racers in the past is not only Bob Beattie's involvement, but the type of competition. Gone is the lonely run down the mountain against the clock — traditional racing that still characterizes Olympic competition and most amateur races.

The ISRA racing is the head-to-head, side-by-side variety, and it's a spectator's delight. The two competitors begin at the same time and head down parallel courses set 12 to 15 feet apart. The object is to beat the other guy across the finish line.

THE PRO RACING circuit isn't pulling in the money that tennis, golf and auto racing are, but it seems to be on fairly stable ground after a shaky formation two years ago when $8,500 was the total catch for three racing weekends.

Last season nine races netted $127,000, and this season $300,000 will be handed out at 12 to 15 race meetings. Not too bad.

Spider Sabich, only moderately successful on the amateur racing circuit, was the top money winner last season with $21,189. He's in the fold again this year and still winning races. Billy Kidd also has joined the group. In fact, the ISRA membership is over 100.

PRESENTLY, those on the tour don't depend entirely upon their winnings to survive financially. Most receive a salary and/or expenses from a resort or manufacturer which they represent. About one-third of the $300,000 comes from Benson and Hedges — hence the tour is called Benson and Hedges 100's Grand Prix. The remainder of the purse is put up by local sponsors who underwrite the individual race weekends.

Competition is in slalom and giant slalom, with a typical race weekend devoting one day to each event. Forty qualifiers race against the clock to determine the top 16 who will battle in the dual challenge matches. These man-against-man matches are decided in two heats on the two nearly identical parallel courses. The competitors race against each other twice, switching courses after the first run. The time differential between the two racers after the two runs determines the winner.

When only two racers are left, it's head-on-head all the way. The first racer to win two runs in a row (still switching after each run) is the champion.

NORMALLY, the courses are set on intermediate slopes about 600-800 feet long, and the racers can be viewed during the entire run by spectators at the bottom of the course. The two hours that it takes to cut from the final 16 racers to the winner seems much more exciting than a stream of less-dramatic runs against the clock as in traditional racing.

The idea seems good. If the heavy names like Jean-Claude Killy or Karl Schranz can be lured to compete once in a while, the ISRA should have no problems.

March 10-12, Bear Valley will host an event and March 24-26 will feature competition at Ski Incline.

NHL ROUNDUP

Boston Ties Penguins; Pittsburgh Coach Hot

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Coach Red Kelly's face was almost as red as his hair and neck Wednesday night after his Pittsburgh Penguins battled to a 2-2 tie with the Boston Bruins in one of four National Hockey League games.

Ordinarily, a tie with the powerful Bruins would be considered a good night's work for the Penguins but Kelly had to think Pittsburgh would have won if he hadn't lost his temper in the first period. Kelly was given a bench penalty for charging onto the ice to protest a referee's call and Johnny Bucyk scored the Bruins' first goal while the Penguins were shorthanded.

Ken Schinkel's two goals gave the Penguins a 2-1 lead but the Bruins earned the tie on a second-period goal by Eddie Westfall. The Bruins dominated play the rest of the way but couldn't break the deadlock.

Kelly went onto the ice when Bryan Hextall of the Penguins was ejectdd for joining a scuffle between Boston's John McKenzie and Pittsburgh's Dave Burrows with the game 1:16 old. Bucyk's goal came 21 seconds after the bench penalty against Kelly.

Rookie Jerry Korab's 65-foot slap shot at 17:14 of the third period earned the Chicago Black Hawks a 5-5 tie with the New York Rangers. Two second-period goals by Walt Tkaczuk helped the Rangers take a 4-2 lead but the Black Hawks rallied for three goals in the third period, including one each by Bobby and Dennis Hull.

Paul Henderson received credit for a goal, actually knocked into the net by Los Angeles' Ralph Backstrom, with 5:33 left in the third period as the Toronto Maple Leafs tied the Kings 1-1. Backstrom knocked the puck past the startled Gary Edwards while trying to clear the rubber out of the Toronto zone. Harry Howell sent the Kings in front with his first goal of the season at 16:52 of the seconds period.

Recreation Basketball

Humphrey Heads edged Ranger Kicks, 42-41; Buresh, Vallarino, Costamagna and Claxon defeated Turkeys, 67-48, and the Centaurs beat Golden Gate Trotters, 49-37 in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department basketball games last night.

MCAL MEET AT REDWOOD

Girls Gymnastics Crown 'Up For Grabs' Saturday

Saturday morning the girls will take over Redwood High School's gymnasium, and will go nimbly through a series of events that would leave the more famous football and basketball players panting and groaning.

The occasion is the Marin County Athletic League girls gymnastics championships, which will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., with awards ceremonies extending the day until 5 o'clock.

Eight MCAL schools are entered — Drake, Novato, Redwood, San Domenico, San Marin, San Rafael, Tamalpais and Terra Linda. It's San Marin's first year. Tam won the meet last year, but this year's championships will be "up for grabs," according to publicist Lyn Avila.

"This year the routines were changed," she said. "It's a compulsory meet, which means everybody must perform the same routines, and nobody has had enough time to get really familiar with them.

Participants will be judged against a "perfect image" in five events — uneven parallel bars, balance beam, free exercise, vaulting and all-around, which is a compilation of the other four.

There are five levels of competition — novice, beginner, school intermediate, open intermediate and advanced. Open intermediate is reserved for girls who do a great deal of practicing outside of school, or who are markedly superior to their contemporaries.

Advanced is the highest category, and there will be only two entrants in that bracket this year — Ronnie Meeks of Tam and Debbie Slaby of Drake. Other categories are full.

The meet is open to the public. There is no charge.

The top 50 per cent in each group will advance to the Section IV meet, scheduled for Jan. 29 at Terra Linda High School.

Greensboro Open Awards Increased

NEW YORK (UPI)—The prize money for this year's Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament has been increased by $10,000 to a total of $200,000.

The tournament is scheduled for March 30-April 2 at the Sedgefield Country Club, Greensboro, N.C.

New Decoupage Studio Will Open Soon At Pacheco Plaza

A new studio to be opened Feb. 1 at 406 Ignacio Boulevard, in the Pacheco Plaza, Ignacio, will be called Decoupage, Ltd.

This is a project of Mrs. Karl Beiter, a recent arrival in Novato from Hudson, Ohio, where she first became interested in the 16th Century art of decoupate (cut-outs and paste-ups for decoration) as a hobby. For the past five years she has been teaching the subject.

Her shop will carry an extensive line of supplies and Mrs. Beiter will be conducting morning classes and lecturing before groups.

MANY INNOVATIVE PROMOTIONS, products and services are being planned by Montgomery Ward and Co., which is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

For 1972, "Centkry 2" will feature a catalog offering more than 100,000 items, according to Donald Gillis, manager of the Corte Madera store. Among new products to be offered are a safety-engineered rotary lawnmower, a humidifier and electronic air cleaner, a line of 19th Century glassware that hasn't been sold for 80 years, home remodeling equipment, new convenience housewares, sporting equipment, furnishings and fabrics.

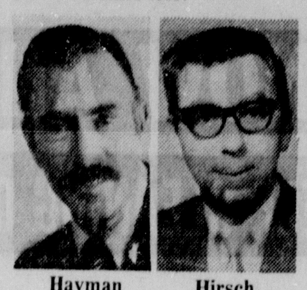
The company will be spending $130 million for advertising this year, so you'll be hearing about it as new items are introduced.

SOME IMPORTS already are commencing to filter out of the People's Republic of China, according to Arthur Deiters of the Adobe Hut, 1321 Fourth Street, San Rafael, who is now showing jade trees and clocks from that area in the store.

A still larger jade collection from Hong Kong, Burma and Taiwan has been picked up by Deiters and his wife Elaine on a trip to the Orient during the holidays.

Other new items at the store include hand-cut elk hide buckles from Canada and additional silver buckles, blankets and copper jewelry (sometimes favored by arthritics) from the 75 Indian families in New Mexico and Arizona who do work for the Deiters' jewelry and curio shop.

PHILIP S. HAYMAN of Tiburon has been named executive vice-president and a director of Honig-Cooper and Harrington. He has been with the advertising firm since 1964 and a senior vice-president since 1969.



Hayman Hirsch

STEVEN A. HIRSCH of Greenbrae has been promoted to assistant vice-president in the Bank of America's travelers check department at San Francisco headquarters. He joined the bank in 1954 as a teller at the 21st and Irving branch in San Francisco and since has served at the Divisadero-Hayes branch, the Timeplan collection department, in the methods research department and has been in the travelers check department since 1966.

DR. MARK M. MORRIS of Tiburon has been elected president of the San Francisco County Optometric Society for 1972, succeeding Dr. Lawrence E. Babow of San Rafael. Dr. Morris is secretary of the inter-professional relations committee of the Health Professions Council of San Francisco and practices at 2154 Mission Street in that city.

42 Cents-Share Income Reported

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Wells Fargo Mortgage Investors has reported net income for the three months ended Dec. 31 of $1,584,000, or 42 cents per share.

This compares with $1,202,000, or 32 cents per share, for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1970. Net income for the six months ended Dec. 31 was $3,073,000, or 82 cents per share, compared with $2,240,000, or 60 cents per share, for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1970.

Oil Firms Over A Barrel

VIENNA (UPI)—Once again, the oil companies of the western world are over a barrel.

At two meetings in Geneva this month, they will be asked to ante up hundreds of millions of dollars to offset the devaluation of the dollar and to start selling off — at bargain-basement rates — their operations in the Middle East.

If they refuse, they face a possible boycott—the threat that the Middle Eastern nations will simply turn off the taps on the wells that keep the oil world afloat.

On one side of the Geneva table will sit the six Persian Gulf states—Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar and Abu Dhabi. On the other side will be representatives of the "Big Seven" oil firms—Standard of New Jersey, Standard of California, Mobil, Shell, Gulf, Texaco and British Petroleum plus a host of smaller companies.

The countries own the oil under their desert wastes, but rent them on long-term leases to the companies, who pay taxes, royalties and other fees. For some countries, these oil fees make up nearly 100 per cent of their annual income.

The stakes in the two Geneva talks are huge—nearly $400 million in retroactive compensation money alone, plus future control of the world oil exporting business. That business is the world's biggest, worth more than $110 billion per year.

In the end, as usual, it will be the consumer who pays.

Although the six Gulf states will technically be negotiating on their own, the meetings were arranged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) a Vienna based guild whose 11 members jointly account for 93 per cent of the world's oil exports.

Because of this control, and because of a current oil shortage, OPEC in the past year has become immensely powerful. Only last February, it prsssured the companies into new contracts that will bring OPEC members an extra three billion per year by 1976.

OPEC's new demands have come as a shock to the oil firms, who thought that the February agreement stabilized the oil world for five years. OPEC's new program can be simply put:

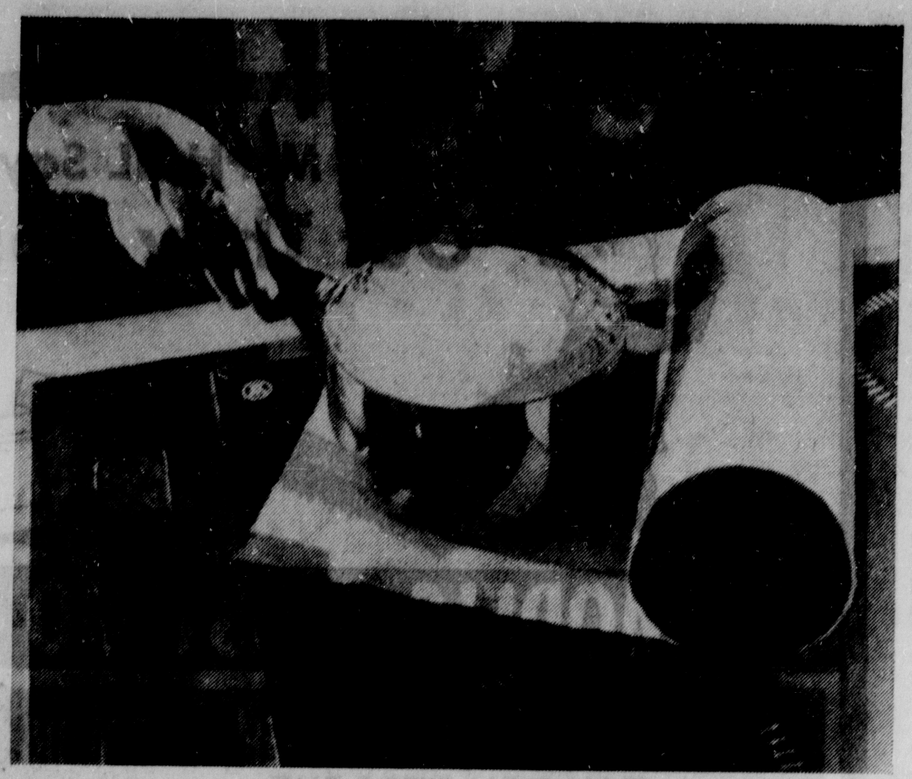
—The companies pay their fees to OPEC members in dollars. The loss in the dollar's value has cut into their income, and they want compensation, retroactive to President Nixon's economic announcement on Aug. 14. By mid-January, that retroactive bill will be up to nearly $400 million, with another 75-million every month after that.

—The companies' leases with OPEC members expire between 1983 (Venezuela) and 2026 (Kuwait). OPEC says its members want to have total control of their oil operations by that time, instead of leasing them to foreigners. They want to get started in this "participation" now by buying a share — 20 per cent this year — of local equipment and management jobs. By 1985, they want effective control — 51 per cent. These talks start Jan. 20.

The devaluation issue is a short-term one. But the "participation" issue eventually could wipe out western oil company operations in the Middle East.

OPEC's other five members —Indonesia, Venezuela, Algeria, Nigeria and Libya—either control local oil operations already or are making their own arrangements. Thus, the Geneva talks boil down to the Persian Gulf Six, who produce 60 per cent of OPEC's total output, and therefore more than half of the world's oil exports.

Russia and America produce most of their own oil. But the industry and economies of Japan and Western Europe would dry up if OPEC called a boycott.



THE POT'S NOT HOT

The surface of this new Westinghouse "cool heat" range stays cool enough that a pan of water can be brought to a boil through a paper towel without singeing the paper. The range utilizes electric coils beneath the cooking surface that generate a magnetic field that cooks the food without getting the pot hot.

Spillover Profit-Taking Sends Early Stocks Down

NEW YORK (UPI) —Spillover profit taking from the previous sessions sent stocks lower in moderate turnover through the first two hours of trading Thursday.

Among the day's softest spots were Levitz Furniture down 2 1-2, IBM 2 1-4, and Digital Equipment 4 1-2.

American Research & Development, which spurted 5 points after a delayed opening, agreed in principle to be merged into Textron, Inc., of Providence. Prior to the merger, American Research will spin off its holdings in Digital Equipment Corp. to its shareholders. Textron's stock was off 5-8.

Shortly before noon, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was off 6.32 at 904.50. Other leading averages also backed off, and declines held a commanding 997 to 279 lead over advances.

Prices also declined in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

Among the most active Amex issues were Austral Oil fractionally lower on 25,000 shares, Sanitas Service about steady on 24,000 shares, and Delto Corporation of America down more than a point on 23,000 shares.

On the big board, Fedders Corp. was a trading feature, as an early block of 114,500 shares changed hands at 41, down 1 1-2.

Also active were First Charter Financial off 5-8, and Ampex Corp. 3-8 lower. Ampex said it expects to report a loss for the year.

Steels and chemicals generally gave up fractions, as did most rails.

Shares Offered

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Here's What To Do With Credithrift

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own 75 shares of Credithrift Financial. My original purchase was 50 shares at 25-7/8 before the 3-for-2 split. I have $2,500 to invest and would like to know if I should increase my holdings in Credithrift or diversify?—T.F.

A. Your per share cost is 17¼, reflecting the 50 per cent increase in shares outstanding. In recent months shares have moved sideways on the Big Board despite the strong recovery in earnings.

Credithrift, a small loan company, depends on the short-term money market for capital needs. Thus earnings are highly sensitive to changing rates in this market. Borrowing costs for the coming months are expected to remain at relatively low levels.

Thus, further recovery is anticipated for company earnings. Although shares merit retention I would suggest using new capital to diversify your portfolio with UniRoyal.

UniRoyal, (NYSE) with about 75 per cent of earnings derived from foreign operations, should benefit from the devaluation of the dollar. Trading at only 21x estimated 1971 earnings, shares may be purchased for their excellent recovery potential.

Q. I am interested in buying newly issued treasury bonds. I know these are offered from time-to-time and shall watch the paper. I am enclosing a clipping from the paper; is this what I watch?—C.S.

A. No. This clipping lists daily transactions in the resale bond market. Notices of government debt offerings are printed in the financial section but are in the form of advertisements. Refunding operations are usually announced late in January, April, July and October.

There are a number of treasury issues now trading well below face value to yield over 5 per cent. You might consider purchase of one of these bonds rather than watching for new offerings which do not always include cash offerings. The 4s of Feb. 1980 are trading around 87 to yield almost 6 per cent; and the 3¼s of 1985 at 77 return 5.6 per cent. It is doubtful that you would do much better if you were able to purchase a new government debt issue.

ROBERT R. LINVILL
Retires from Army

General Honored On Retirement

Maj. Gen. Robert R. Linvill, deputy commanding general of Sixth Army reserve forces, has been presented a second award of the Distinguished Service Medal, the Army's highest honor for meritorious service, on his retirement after 31 years of military duty.

Linvill has taken a job as military relations officer with the Bank of America in San Francisco.

Born in Ohio and a graduate of Ohio State University, Linvill was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Reserves in 1935.

He is a veteran of World War II, having served in the North African and Italian campaigns, and served in Brazil, the Dominican Republic and Korea.

He also holds the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters and the Purple Heart with two oak leaf clusters.

Special Instructor

Adrienne Gualco has been hired as a special craft instructor with the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation director, announced today. Mrs. Gualco will teach arts and crafts, sewing, creative clothing and junior teen crafts.

$35 Million Slice For Legislature

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Legislature would get nearly $35 million of Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget for the next fiscal year.

The amount is about 6 per cent higher than current estimated expenditures.

The largest single item was $32 million for salaries for lawmakers and their staffs, living and travel expenses, printing of bills and the "daily files," and contracts with consultants and agencies.

It was estimated that the Legislature this fiscal year would spend $29.8 million for such services.

The next biggest expenditure was $2 million for the Legislative Counsel Bureau, a 5 per cent increase. The bureau furnishes legal services to the Legislature including opinions, bill drafting and counseling.

The budget provided $642,134 for contributions to the legislators' retirement fund, down from $1 million this year.

Reagan's budget said, "This decrease is due to the fact that state contributions for the current year (1971-72) are expected to be in excess of the total amount required and therefore will be available in the budget year."

Other appropriations included $175,900 for the Law Revision Commission, which assists the Legislature in keeping the law up to date; and $23,100 for the Commission on Uniform State Laws, which drafts and presents to the Legislature "uniform laws considered desirable and practicable by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws."

Pay Hikes For Federal Workers

President Nixon Tuesday signed an executive order which will release funds for the pay increases which had been held up since Sept. 1.

The increases will be paid retroactive to Nov. 14, the day the freeze ended, and may be extended further, depending upon a ruling now before the comptroller general.

The increases, however, will not be allowed to exceed the 5.5 per cent post-freeze guideline for annual wage increases.
